CARMEL WOODS and Carmelo Schools will close their doors for the last time June 11. Summer vacation is usually a time for celebration by teachers, students and parents, but this year it is a little subdued as they realize the loss of two old friends. Above, students race out of class on their way to a field trip while, below, Betty MacGowan talks about her feelings. For a story on how the community has reacted to the impending closings, see pages 14-15. (Michael R. Gardner photographs).

Annexation moves forward; costs still unclear

By ROBERT MISKIMON

"IT'S LIKE JUMPING into a hole and not knowing how far you'll fall."

Despite that admonition by Carmel Planning Commission Chairwoman Sandy Swain, the Carmel City Council has moved forward with the proposed annexation of Carmel Woods.

The council approved by a 4-1 vote a tax allocation formula for revenues from the 170 acres of unincorporated land to the northeast of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

That formula would give Carmel $51,108 of the $169,616 in available tax revenues; the remaining $118,508 would go to Monterey County. The same resolution has been approved by county supervisors.

However City Administrator Doug Peterson made it clear he has no precise idea what it will cost Carmel to provide fire, police, public works and other municipal services to the Carmel Woods area if annexation succeeds.

"We haven't done any definitive studies of costs," Peterson told the council, "The reason is the time frame this has been presented in. There is no magical formula that sets forth the level of service in a new area or in the existing city limits. Every year the council makes those determinations in the budget process."

Peterson said a detailed survey of city department heads will be made to provide the council with more specific information at its June 15 meeting.

The Local Agency Formation Commission — which will approve or disapprove of annexation — tentatively is scheduled to consider the matter June 22. If LAFCO approves, the city council must hold a protest hearing, tentatively scheduled for July 26.

If 25 to 50 percent of registered voters in Carmel Woods protests, an election would then be scheduled for Nov. 2, according to a schedule devised by Peterson. Delivery of services to the newly-annexed area would not begin until June 30, 1983 if annexation is approved.

Mayor Charlotte Townsend said there may be some increased costs to the city of Carmel in public works services if annexation occurs, but said "significant other costs will not be incurred, but it might dilute to some extent the efficacy of services."

Councilwoman Helen Arnold said she favors annexation because "if we take in those areas it will extend our umbrella of protection" in zoning and land use controls.

"There are all kinds of problems this raises that we don't know the answer to," Councilman Robert Stephenson said when he voted against the tax allocation formula.

Keep right-of-way

Dear Editor:

Subject: Comments on-Proposal to Rescind Route Adoption-Hatton Canyon Freeway

As a registered traffic engineer and a resident of Carmel Valley, I would like to present my views in opposition to the subject proposal.

With an increase in population of the Carmel Valley area and the adjoining country south to San Luis Obispo along State Route 1, there is now and will be a definite need to extend the four lane freeway south of Carpenter Street, Carmel, which is the present terminus.

Traffic congestion has been increasing due to both growth and tourism to the scenic coastal route. The present two lanes, south of Ocean Avenue, have caused increasing delays and accidents because of existing grade crossings requiring left turns to adjoining cross streets.

A number of years ago, the state acquired this right of way as a part of the master plan for a reasonable price and it would be a gross disservice to the traveling public to relinquish it for a relatively small capital gain as compared to re-acquiring it again within a few future years.

This re-alignment is vitally needed.

'Unfair' to librarian

Dear Editor:

I believe Harrison Memorial Library is handling its financial problems very unfairly. Alice Terrell went to work there 11 years ago, and now, she is abruptly fired.

Surely, it is customary to fire the most recent employee(s) and make reductions in other ways. I would suggest lowering the thermostat, reducing the number of periodicals, and closing on Mondays for a start.

I am shocked and ashamed of the way my town has dealt with a long-term, dependable employee.

Thanks to Sillman

Dear Editor:

I noticed the other day that Stephen Sillman was running for Municipal Court Judge. I had the opportunity to meet Sillman a few years ago under the most unfortunate of circumstances. A few years ago, a co-worker of mine, Marjorie Puluti, was murdered by her husband. It appeared initially that the tragedy of Marjorie's death was going to be compounded by our system of justice that all too often allows the "guilty" to go free.

Sillman was the Assistant District Attorney who prosecuted the case against Puluti. It was one of the most unusual cases to be prosecuted in Monterey County in recent years because the victim's body was not found for two years.

As a witness for the prosecution testifying to the exceptional character of Mrs. Puluti I had the opportunity to see Sillman at work. I was impressed and believe to this day that his efforts on the case were the determining factor in the jury finding Puluti guilty. His efforts also reinforced my belief that people make systems work or not work. The criminal justice system is too important not to work.

I would like to thank Sillman for his part in making the criminal justice system in Monterey County work right.

Nash for superintendent

Dear Editor:

Phil Nash, currently dean of instruction and planning at Monterey Peninsula College, is running for county superintendent of schools. His documented commitment to local education is impressive: he has raised more than ten million dollars in grant monies; he has been in public education administration for over ten years; he developed the computer science program at MPC, and was the founder and cornerstone of MPC's solar conservation program, the unique fishing program, the Gentrain program, and was a key leader in obtaining funds for the college's recently-announced nursing program.

His academic degrees are in the areas of history, business, and administration; in addition, he has done extensive post-graduate fellowships at Stanford, Harvard, UC-Davis, and George Washington Universities.

He has demonstrated through the years an uninterrupted record of community involvement as chairman and/or member of many policy-determining city, county, and state committees, and is currently chairman of the board of trustees at Eskaton Monterey Hospital.

As a board member of several health organizations within the county, and as a parent of schoolchildren, I endorse Phil Nash for county superintendent of schools.

'Sense of fairness'

Dear Editor:

We have known Judge William Burleigh for a number of years, both as an attorney and as a judge. He is a very fine and warm person and approaches his judicial responsibilities with a strong sense of fairness and a concern for human values and people.

We heartily endorse him for re-election to the Monterey Municipal Court and urge others to vote for him on June 8.

Thanks for the help!

Dear Editor:

I understand that Judge Burleigh takes pride in the fact that he has been disqualified as a judge hundreds of times.

As a retired legal secretary I think that is a terrible record.

Most judges become concerned if they are challenged once or twice.

What we need on the bench is a judge that is fair, knowledgeable and impartial. Someone who is respected and acceptable to both sides.

With the heavy caseload it is important each judge carry his own load and not allow his work to be shifted to another court.

If this is being done on a daily basis I can see why his courtroom is considered by many to have a serious problem.

Up to this point I was inclined to vote for Judge Burleigh but I cannot condone a judge who considers being challenged one of his best qualities.

Thank you for helping me decide on voting for Stephen Sillman.

Sillman 'inaccurate'

Dear Editor:

In a recent Pine Cone interview, Steve Sillman claimed that a graduate student's study showed $83,000 was wasted in the three Municipal Courts in Monterey during the first six months of 1981. The author of the study was contacted, and he considers this inaccurate.

Specifically, the author estimates that witnesses and jurors incurred $83,000 in lost time and other expense when trials in which they were scheduled to participate were rescheduled or cancelled for some reason.

The study shows that this expense could be reduced by some unknown number between zero and $71,000, not $83,000, by making two changes in scheduling policy. The author recognizes that some of this expense is unavoidable.

More important, Judge Burleigh observes that the courts implemented one of the two recommended changes, accounting for $55,000 of the $71,000 maximum potential savings. For Constitutional reasons, Judge Burleigh questions advisability of making the remaining change.

Council should give public complete hearing on library

By ROBERT MISKIMON

TIMES ARE TOUGH for just about everyone these days, and most especially for tax-supported governmental agencies. The city of Carmel and Harrison Memorial Library are no exception.

Word that the library board of directors had laid off the children's librarian and made plans to close Sundays and holidays to compensate for a projected loss of $130,000 in county funds forcefully drove home that point.

However, Carmel remains a wealthy village with a better ability to cope with economic downturns than are other, poorer communities. That's why the parting words of children's librarian Alice Terrell had a particular poignancy.

Ms. Terrell asked how it could be that a community such as Carmel, which can spend more than $400,000 for a 40-by-100 foot park in the commercial district, can't afford her salary of approximately $25,000 per year.

Put another way, the city could have bought the services of a professionally trained children's librarian for at least 10 years for the amount of money it paid to purchase the Piccadilly Park property.

Of course, the Harrison Memorial Library is an entity somewhat apart from the city of Carmel. It is run by its own board of directors, but it does receive about 55 percent of its operating budget from city tax coffers, as well as from county reimbursements.

In another area documented in the study, the author concluded that the courts' existing scheduling system was more effective in terms of volume of work accomplished than the alternatives he considered. No change was recommended in this area.

The significant point is that where improvement was recommended, the court listened and acted accordingly. The author states that Judge Burleigh cooperated fully and supported him in the hope of improving. Both the author and I think this is effective management.

'Fair and balanced'

Dear Editor:

In our political system, there is a tendency to subject the voting public to ever-growing exclamations of fitness for a political post, as well as larger ads in the media, and loans of flyers as election day approaches.

As political campaigns reach a crescendo, it is important that good, qualified and experienced candidates are not overlooked in all the excitement and noise.

Judge William B. Burleigh has proven, by action, his fair administration of justice. He has been on the bench and done his job to protect our law-abiding community, as far as the law allows.

The real issue in this election must not be change for change's sake, but rather the continued fair and balanced administration in our Municipal Court Number One.

Scouting supporters

Dear Editor:

On May 23, the annual Scout-O-Rama was held at the Del Monte Shopping Center in Monterey with many Boy Scout and Cub Scout units from the Peninsula participating.

On behalf of our troop (the only one from Carmel participating), I would like to express our sincere appreciation to the many Carmel residents and businesses, who helped us by purchasing $937 worth of tickets from the Scouts of our troop.

The Scouts and parents of our troop worked hard demonstrating and explaining our exhibits to the public and especially in creating

Therefore the citizens of Carmel have a direct financial as well as cultural stake in what happens with regard to library services. We suspect that many citizens were caught off-guard by the decision of the library board to terminate its full-time children's librarian, and to curtail its hours.

We wonder whether the decisions would have been substantially different if the public could have been fully informed in advance and could have participated more directly in those matters. This is not to imply that the library board has done anything dishonest or improper, but merely to raise the question of whether the public has been fully heard on the level of library services desired.

Since the Carmel City Council undoubtedly will be asked at some point to contribute additional city funds to restore some of these reduced services, it would seem appropriate that the council take every step to insure full public participation before it decides this question.

The 1982-83 budget process is about to begin and it may be too early to know how much city revenue — if any — is available to augment library funds. That may not be a top priority of the present city council, but it may be an important concern to citizens. Either way, the public should be allowed to voice its opinion completely before the final decision on city revenues to the library is made.

two events, namely Brownsea Island (the first Boy Scout camp in the world held in 1907) and the Heritage Trail (a series of competitive events requiring old time skills).

A special word of thanks to Robert Tidwell, who so ably portrayed Lord Baden Powell, founder of Scouting in connection with Brownsea Island. For all of our effort the troop achieved the First Place Award for all Boy Scout units exhibiting at the Scout-O-Rama.

On the Monterey Peninsula district level, thanks should go to Wally Poirier, ticket chairperson; Robert Bobulinski and Maury Boyd, event co-chairmen and Nickolas D'Ombrian, recently named district scout executive. These people made it all happen.

I wish that more Carmel residents could take time from their busy schedules to see what Scouting is doing these days and to see what it can do for young men who are members of the Scouting movement.

Applauds annexation try

Dear Editor:

As a resident of Carmel since 1945, first residing in the city limits, then in Carmel Woods for 14 years, and now living within the city again, I applaud the residents of Carmel Woods in their efforts to annex to the city of Carmel.

We all share common interests, we all care about Carmel and want to preserve its unique qualities, we have a great deal to offer each other and I believe we all have much to gain in spirit and common purpose by extending the north boundary of Carmel to Pescadero Canyon.

Controversy simmers over dam ideas; directors may pick project on June 7

By ROBERT MISKIMON

DIRECTORS of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District are to decide in a special meeting June 7 among three approaches to augmentation of the local water supply.

They are on-channel and off-channel reservoirs on the upper Carmel River and underground recharge and storage in the Seaside aquifer.

All three approaches have different political, environmental and financial consequences. And, as yet, there has not been a clear consensus expressed by board members in which path they wish to pursue.

District staff have predicted that the current water demand of 16,000 ac. ft. per year will increase to 33,400 ac. ft. by the year 2020. The current water-producing capacity in the district — including California-American Water Co. — is about 20,000 ac. ft. per year.

District Manager Bruce Buel said preliminary calculations indicate that another dam at the on-channel San Clemente site with 27,000 ac. ft. storage capacity would be more cost effective than smaller, off-channel reservoirs.

Feasibility tests have not yet been completed for underground injection and storage of water in Seaside, but that alternative appears to be considerably less expensive than either of the dam proposals, Buel said. If successful, the scheme also would yield much less additional storage capacity than would another reservoir, he added.

Directors are to be presented with computer projections for all three proposals at their June 7 session. The meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. in Monterey City Council chambers.

"We will request some kind of policy decision from the board on which way to move on this," Buel said. "We're at a decision point now."

Preliminary calculations present a favorable picture of the 27,000 ac. ft. on-channel reservoir proposal, Buel said.

"We figured we can meet 60 percent of the future demand in 99 percent of the years with a 27,000 ac. ft. reservoir," Buel indicated. "Or we could meet 80 percent of the demand in 96 percent of the years; or at least 100 percent of the demand in 80 percent of the years."

The calculations were based on the assumption that 15 percent of future water demand could be eliminated through conservation measures, which brings the actual demand by the year 2020 to 28,900 ac. ft. per year, Buel said.

"This assumes some sort of active water conservation program," he said. "Water conservation is a cost-effective way to increase the water supply. Conservation will cost $38 per acre foot to get people to reduce their consumption. The cost for a reservoir is $243 per acre foot of water."

CALCULATIONS which give an idea of how well the various projects would meet future water needs were developed through the use of runoff records which date to 1902.

Readings for the Arroyo Seco watershed were compared with runoff measurements for the Carmel River watershed to predict what kind of water supply would be available with the three alternatives.

"We're trying to use history to indicate our degree of vulnerability with various runoffs and demands on the system," Buel said. "We plug in the demand figures and project shortfalls of various sizes for different years. We've assumed that we would be willing to accept some shortfalls for some periods of time."

If a dam with 27,000 ac. ft. storage capacity is built, it would mean that "once every five years we wouldn't be able to meet all of the demand but we'd be so close that it wouldn't make any difference," Buel said.

"We'd have to have a 10 percent reduction in demand once every 10 years. That shouldn't be a problem because we cut back our demand by 45 percent during the 1977 drought. Right now, we're very vulnerable to another drought."

Buel acknowledged that the growth patterns projected in 1980, when original estimates of future water demand were made, should be revised downward.

"Our original growth projections appear too high," he said. "Since 1980 there have been a number of recent down-zonings and changes in the general plan, the Carmel Valley Master Plan, and the Del Monte Forest plan that all indicate growth will occur more slowly, or maybe not at all, in some areas."

Estimated cost of an on-channel dam with 27,000 ac. ft. storage capacity is $43 million. As much as $10 million more may have to be added to that figure to pay for mitigation measures to preserve the steelhead fisheries, Buel said.

Off-channel reservoirs with total storage capacity of 14,000 ac. ft. would cost about $60 million, which means "the cost per unit of storage is greater" with the off-channel alternative, according to district projections.

Exact needs to preserve the steelhead fisheries have not been precisely determined, but the district fishery consultant has said that a 27,000 ac. ft. reservoir would assure adequate year-round flows in the Carmel River to maintain the steelhead population.

"Except in the very dry years when we would have no steelhead runs," Buel added. "We would still have to devise some method to truck the fish around the dam or get them through the dam."

INITIAL TESTS of a scheme to create a fresh water barrier near the ocean to permit additional storage of water underground in Seaside have not been encouraging, Buel indicated.

The district plans to have a pressurized underground injection well ready for tests in Seaside in the near future; this would give more concrete information on the feasibility of underground storage of excess winter runoff from the Carmel River which could be carried through the Canada de la Segunda pipeline to Seaside.

"There's a handful of people in the community who keep telling us, 'You people were created to build a dam; now get off your ass and do it.' These people are pushing for an immediate go-ahead on the dam. It's all very one-sided."

"We've estimated that we could recharge the aquifer to store an additional 1,000 ac. ft. per year for about $3 million, if the tests are successful," Buel said. "One of the questions facing the board is whether to do the cheaper project first as something to buy us time while we examine the other alternatives."

"As things are now, the community is vulnerable. If we had another drought now, we'd have to have rationing by about 20 percent," Buel said.

Nancy McClintock of Seaside, chairwoman of the board of directors, remains unconvinced that any kind of dam is necessary. McClintock said she plans to press for underground storage in Seaside as an affordable alternative.

"Everything is grinding to a halt," she said. "This is no time to be rushing madly ahead as if everything is all right. We don't need a dam now. Housing is at a standstill; industry is not coming to the area; people are getting laid off; people are conserving more."

"It's premature in terms of the demand and in terms of what people will vote for, to go ahead at this time. If we are able to put injection wells into use and bring the excess water in off the Canada de la Segunda pipeline, we wouldn't be affecting the fish or the bay. We'd just be filling up the Seaside aquifer."

"We can get this done in one or two years much cheaper than we could build a dam."

McClintock figures she is in the minority among the seven members of the board on the issue, but said she has detected flickers of support from Supervisor William Peters — also a member of the water board. Peters was out of town and unavailable for comment at press time.

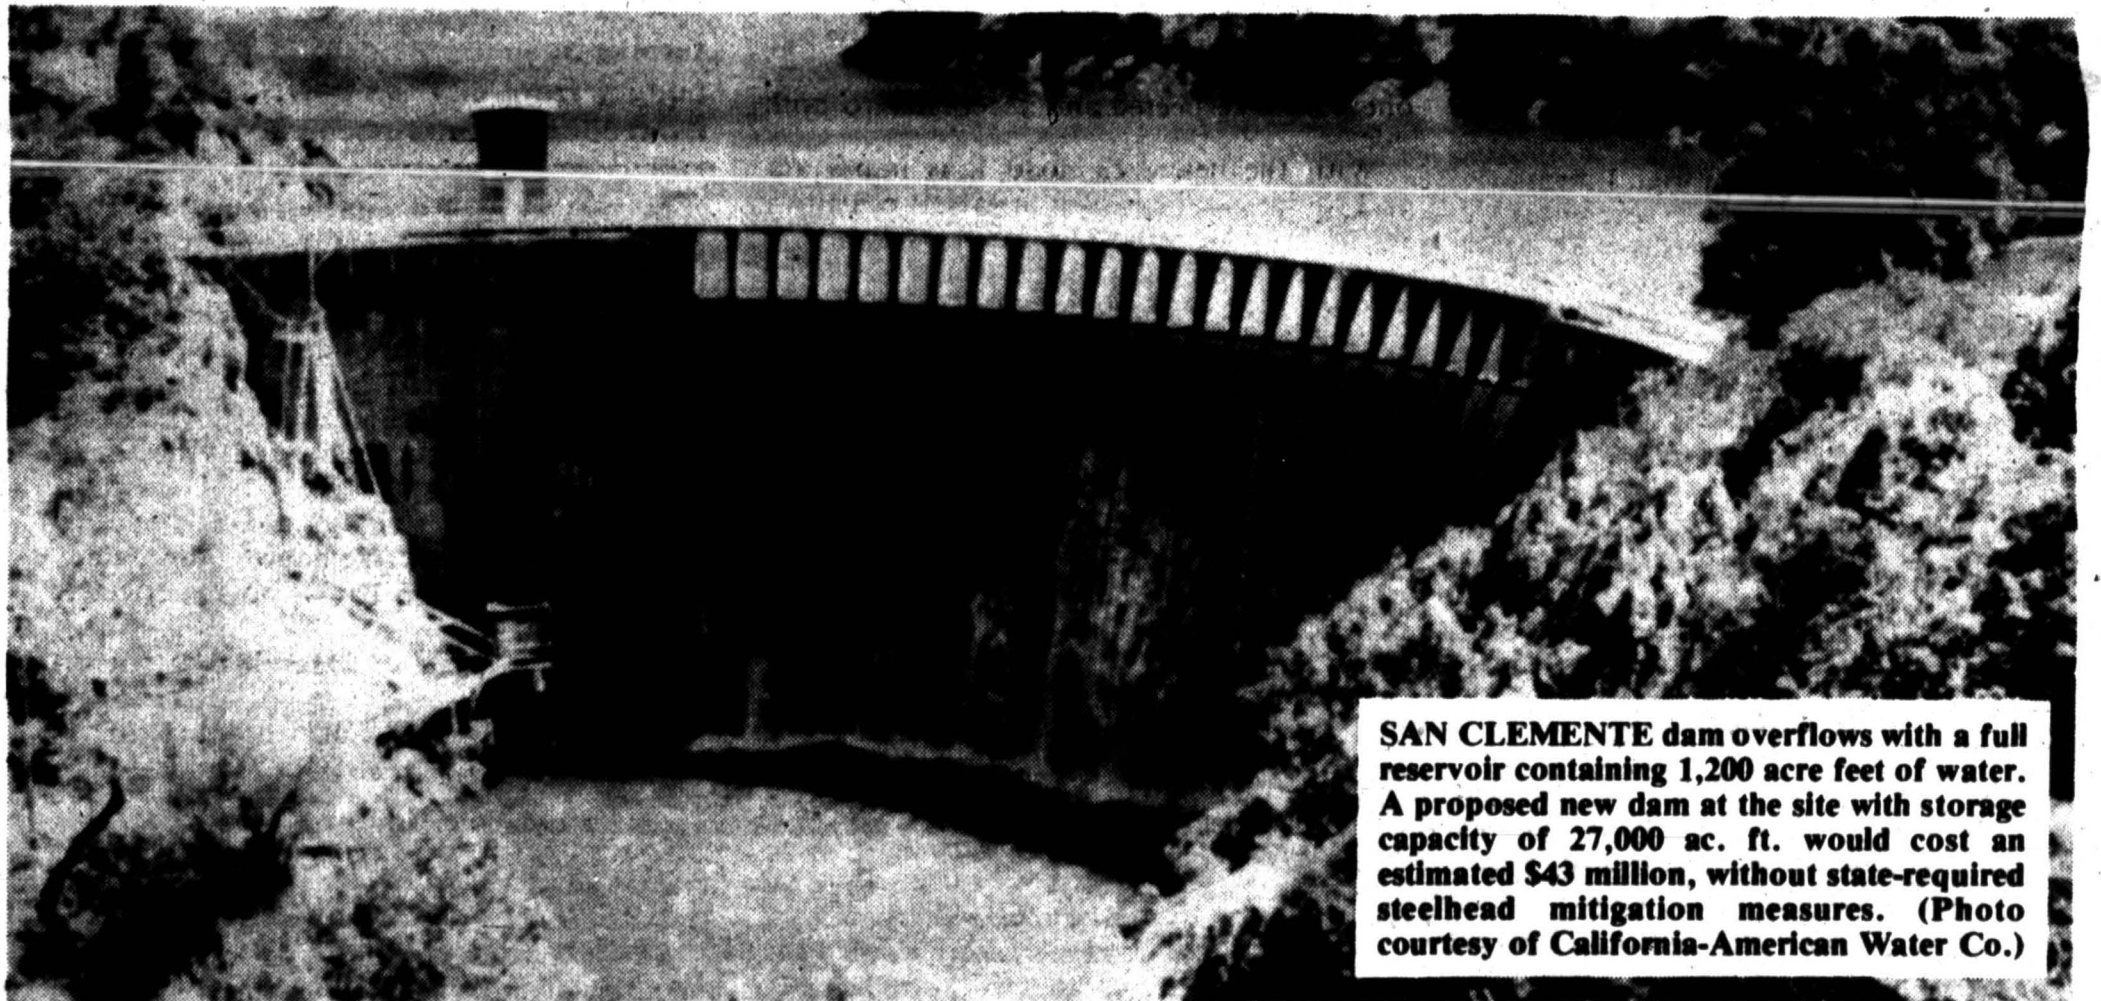

In any event, it is too soon to decide on which of the three alternatives to pursue because all the research has not been completed, McClintock said.

"Last November, we voted to bring the projects all on line at the same time to look at them and decide what we wanted to do," she said. "We haven't completed all the research, but now they seem to be saying, 'Forget all that and let's build a dam.'"

"There's a handful of people in the community who keep telling us, 'You people were created to build a dam; now get off your ass and do it.' These people are pushing for an immediate go-ahead on the dam. It's all very one-sided."

Buel estimated preparation of an environmental impact report for another dam would cost between $100,000 and $200,000, but Ms. McClintock said she is willing to contact the various state regulatory agencies herself to see what their requirements are, instead of spending that sum of money for an EIR if the district decides to pursue that course.

"My first choice would be to put the recharge project into Seaside," she said. "But the majority of the push is for a dam."

SAN CLEMENTE dam overflows with a full reservoir containing 1,200 acre feet of water. A proposed new dam at the site with storage capacity of 27,000 ac. ft. would cost an estimated $43 million, without state-required steelhead mitigation measures. (Photo courtesy of California-American Water Co.)

Will school trustees change position?

CAN THE Carmel Unified School District Board of Education be persuaded to change its mind on a decision to eliminate one teaching position at Carmel Valley High School?

The school staff is expected to present a report to trustees June 7 that will outline the ramifications of the board decision.

Faced with a large budget deficit, trustees made the decision May 25 on a split 3-2 vote. In favor of the elimination of the teaching position were Ken White, Barbara Sanford and Doyle Clayton while Harold Santee and Joan Cathey dissented.

The administration had recommended that trustees transfer a special education teacher to Carmel Valley High School to replace a temporary English instructor whose contract has not been renewed.

The transfer would keep four teachers including the teaching-principal at the school which has an average enrollment of about 45 students.

"I think we have a super program and no matter what happens, we will give our best to those students. There's nothing conclusive at this point as far as what is actually going to happen," Kohnke said.

Teacher Bruce Stannard was less reserved. At the board meeting he said Carmel Valley High School is a "money-maker" for the district because of special state funds.

Stannard said the board is "elitist" by transferring the funds out of his school budget and agreed with Rand that the loss of a teaching position would "devastate" the program.

School secretary Rosemary Broderick said a fourth teacher is "absolutely necessary."

Ms. Broderick pointed out that the students are all on individual contracts and earn credits toward graduation when the contract is completed. She said the nature of the program necessitates a low student-teacher ratio.

Carmel Valley High students Peter Barrow and Nina Ledesma, both juniors, said the loss of a teacher would hurt the program.

Barrow said the fourth teacher has helped him in his studies and feels that student education will suffer.

"I feel the way everyone else does. It will hurt the school and we won't learn as much," he said. "You get more attention here and you get help when you need it."

"I don't think that it will be that good. I think we need the other teacher," said Ms. Ledesma. "The thing a lot of kids like out here is that they can talk to the teachers. There are not a lot of students here, but with the amount of teachers we get the attention we need. At the high school (in Carmel) there is just not enough one to one."

Mrs. Sanford said she opposes four teachers at the school because she feels the money is needed elsewhere.

"It's an excellent program — don't get me wrong. I just think that with the economic problems, that we cannot afford the low student-teacher ratio. If we had the money, I would love to see four teachers there."

But Santee and Cathey argued that the program needs the low student-teacher ratio

SANTEE and Cathey pointed out that the district receives special state funds to operate the program at the low student-teacher ratio.

However, Supt. William Rand said the funds are not categorical and have no strings attached.

Rand did make a plea to the board to retain the teaching position. He said the loss of a teacher would "devastate" the program and the duties would have to be performed by the other three staff members.

Forestry commission still upset over beach bank

By ROBERT MISKIMON

IT'S BEEN six months since Carmel-by-the-Sea girded its loins and decided to go ahead with plans to construct a beach walkway along Scenic Road.

And yet, nothing tangible has happened. Despite hopeful statements by City Administrator Douglas Peterson last December about engineering studies, the project to all appearances is moribund.

The Carmel Forestry Commission, which vented its frustration over the lack of progress on the beach walkway last December, wrung its hands again in helpless anguish at its May 25 meeting.

The commission, an advisory agency to the Carmel City Council, is charged with oversight of the urban forest, parks and open space, and beaches. The walkway has been proposed as one means to help control bank erosion by providing pedestrians with an alternate route over the embankment between Scenic Road and the beach.

City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio summed up the consternation of the forestry commission:

"They just don't know anything about what's happening. We've been on this project now for three and one-half years. The commission has made several requests to the city administrator and to the city council but we never seem to get anywhere."

A total of $25,000 was allocated for the project in the 1981-82 budget. Conceptual renderings have been prepared but they languish somewhere in city hall archives. What's wrong?

"We're not too happy," said Matt Smith, chairman of the forestry commission. "We don't know what to do to get it going. We worked out a concept and had it approved by the last council. We would like to see it get going."

Smith said forestry commission members are fed up with discussion of the project — especially since "conceptual approval" already has been given by the council — and want to see some action.

"A walkway would be nice esthetically and it would serve to direct people to the stairway instead of over the bank," he said.

Implementation of the project might prove difficult, Smith acknowledged, since "each segment may have a little different problem. The concept is there; it's just a matter of getting it started."

Smith has his own theory as to why the project hasn't gotten started:

"Maybe some members of the council are not too sold on the idea. But the public is all in support of it; they said so when we held hearings on it."

Peterson said he plans to include a portion of the beach walkway in an erosion control project now under review by city department heads. Preliminary plans for the erosion control project were drawn up by engineer Jon Raggett last December.

Costs ranged from $70,000 for a rock wall to halt erosion at the base of the embankment between 10th and 11th, to $112,000 for a concrete retaining wall with rock facing.

The city administrator said he thinks the beach walkway favored by the forestry commission could be built in segments as part of the bank erosion project.

"I see the stairway and walkway plan as part of that project," Peterson said. "We've got Raggett's plans here at city hall. I will get staff comments and send it back to him. Then it will go back to the council and then go to bid."

Peterson said he hopes that sufficient funds would be incorporated into the 1982-83 budget for the project.

"This will be a continuing thing," Peterson said. "I see this as the first installment in the total project. The ball's in our court."

Peterson said he hopes to have work in the project started by this summer.

would theoretically help lessen this impact by providing an alternative route to the beach. (Photo by Robert Miskimon).

Another delay in hearings on two Carmel restaurant sites

by MICHAEL R. GARDNER

A SIX-MONTH-LONG controversy over Giorgio's and Dock Lor took a break at Carmel City Hall May 26.

The Giorgio's and Dock Lor show saved its best performance for last before a panel of reviewers-the Carmel Board of Adjustments-as a stream of characters paraded to the podium for their grand finale solo performances.

By the time the curtain had closed, the performance resembled theatre of the absurd more than a routine governmental hearing.

The Carmel Board of Adjustments rejected an old use permit that would have allowed Dock Lor to move his Chinese Canton restaurant from its present site on Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets to a building now occupied by Sample Safari on the southwest corner of San Carlos Street and Seventh Avenue.

The board also ruled that Lor must apply for a new use permit wherever he decides to move by June 30.

In addition, the board continued a public hearing on a use permit for Giorgio's Italian

Cafe until July 28. The applicants want to move in at the site now occupied by Lor's restaurant.

Both issues have been before the board several times.

But before the board could take any official action, it witnessed a series of performances by attorneys and stared in disbelief as members heard about use permits, dissolution of partnerships and a potential lease that figured heavily in the complex plot.

Perhaps the best way to outline the confusing scenario is to start at the beginning. Dock Lor at first said he didn't want to move, but lease holder Dick Bruhn wants him out. And the attorneys will argue the case.

First to the podium was Thomas Duffy, an attorney who represents Terry and Mary Bourne, whose names appear on the use permit for Lor to move to the Sample Safari site.

However, Duffy also represents Rod Santos, who owns the Sample Safari building.

Duffy questioned the validity of allowing a use permit that does not have an expiration date. The original permit was granted in December of 1981.

But as Duffy continued his soliloquy, out popped a piece of evidence that wove the web tighter.

A letter from Gerald Goetsch of Los Osos was read by John Clark, an attorney for Bruhn who had not yet been introduced to the audience.

Goetsch said Terry Bourne had negotiated with him over the lease of the building which houses Sample Safari "this past fall and winter."

After he quoted a price to Bourne, time went by but no deal was finalized, the letter said.

ON MAY 5, Goetsch and his partners sold their interest in the lease of Sample Safari to "a partnership to be named later."

"They plan on retailing linen and crystal. At least one member of the new partnership is no stranger to the owner of the property. He is happy at the prospect of them becoming his new tenants," Goetsch said in his letter.

But this key letter leads to a question still unanswered: Who are the partners?

Clark then agreed with an earlier statement by Duffy that a continuance should be granted on the use permit to move to Sample Safari.

It was Clark who uttered one of the key words that probably summed up everyone's feelings: "confused."

Just as the board of adjustments was ready for a brief "intermission," local resident

Dick Schofield jumped up and joined the fracas.

"I guess I'm going to pour a little oil in the pot," he said.

That "oil" was a statement that a representative of Lor had asked him if Lor could lease a building near the post office for the restaurant.

But Schofield did not precisely identify the building. After the meeting, he said the owner of the property and the businessperson in the building know that negotiations are underway with Lor's representative. He said he did not think that it would be in the "best interests" of the negotiations to identify the site.

The show saved some of its finest moments for a "curtain call" after the actual board vote to terminate the use permit and require Lor to apply for a new one if he moves by June 30.

Fox and Duffy appeared together before the commission, arms folded across their chests. Dennis Fox, who represents Lor, said Lor no longer has a partnership agreement with the Bournes. The Bournes' attorney, Duffy, felt otherwise.

A confused and bemused board decided to postpone a scheduled public hearing on the use permit for Giorgio's until July 28.

Parties to the Dock Lor matter must return by June 30 and there will be a repeat for Giorgio's July 28. It has also been announced that Bruhn has terminated Lor's month-to-month lease

Lawyers form speakers' bureau

The Monterey County Women Lawyers' Association has formed a speakers' bureau of women attorneys who will speak on areas of the law of particular interest to local groups or classes.

The attorneys will be available to discuss family law, criminal law, tenants' rights, wills, probate, or other areas of the law.

The organization is a professional, social, and educational group which represents most of the 50 women currently practicing law in Monterey County. Among the services to the community provided by the MCWLA is a recently-published directory which lists the names, addresses and fields of specialty of most of the women attorneys in the county. The directory is available for a charge of $3 which is requested to defray printing costs.

Any person or organization interested in either the speakers' bureau or the directory may contact the Monterey County Women Lawyers' Association at P.O. Box 2532, Monterey, Calif. 93942, or telephone Peggy Schmidt at 372-4717.

June bus passes are half price

Monterey-Salinas Transit will offer June passes for half-price. A single zone pass will sell for only $9, while the all zones pass will cost $17.50.

The single zone pass is good within a single specified zone. The all zones pass is good anywhere MST goes—from Watsonville to Big Sur. The passes will be sold through June 10.

Carmel Valley air monitor removed

CARMEL VALLEY has been without an air pollution measurement device since April 20 and efforts are underway to find a suitable location for the equipment.

The Monterey Bay Air Pollution Control District removed its monitoring device from the Mid-Valley Shopping Center because the site did not meet federal standards.

But the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, and CVPOA member Earl Moser, are engaged in an active search for another location before fall, when atmospheric conditions are most conducive to smog in the Valley.

Lawrence Odle, district air pollution control officer, informed Fifth District Monterey County Supervisor William Peters of the removal by letter.

"The station was located in a room used for storage and maintenance of garden equipment," Odle stated. "The room was not temperature controlled or kept clean. Various chemicals used in garden upkeep were also stored in the room."

Furthermore, at the time the site was selected, quality assurance for air pollution measurement devices "was not fully mandatory," Odle said. The device must be located between 20 and 30 degrees centigrade, he indicated.

Moser, formerly a member of the air pollution control district board of directors, said he is concerned that there is no way to measure pollution in the Valley without a device.

The air pollution control district has indicated its willingness to re-install a measurement device if the proper location can be found. Moser said he is assisting CVPOA members in their search for an eight-by-10 foot room which can be temperature-controlled, preferably in Carmel Valley Village.

"The district has financial difficulties," Moser said. "We hope to be able to get a space donated."

Trustees cut school budget; more reductions on the way

by MICHAEL R. GARDNER

THE FISCAL ax continues to fall on school programs, but if the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education wants to balance the 1982-83 budget, the blade will have to be sharpened and more cuts made.

Trustees will begin another round of budget talks in a special meeting at 7:30 p.m., Monday June 7 at Carmel High School.

Despite $73,900 in budget cuts made at a May 25 session, trustees still find themselves in a dilemma over policy decisions that must be made soon: which programs to pare, how much of a reserve can be nestled away, and whether there will be adequate funds left for staff salaries.

On paper, trustees have met the legal requirement to have a balanced budget.

However, if the budget was left untouched today, there would be approximately $30,000 left over for both staff salaries and reserves.

If trustees stick to a previously-announced position to keep $100,000 in reserves, they must cut an additional $70,000 from the regular budget.

And that would still leave no funds for staff pay increases.

Trustee Doyle Clayton summed up the problem best at the end of the May 25 meeting: "We're a long way from where we need to be. I think we're fooling ourselves if we think we can leave our budget with a $30,000 reserve and we still haven't dealt with a major issue yet (staff pay hikes)."

Before the budget talks began, trustees received the new contract proposal from the Association of Carmel Teachers, which asks for a nearly 14 percent pay increase in 1982-83.

A public hearing on the contract proposal is scheduled for 5 p.m. today (June 3) at the high school.

The ACT proposal requests a cost-of-living increase based on the San Francisco cost-of-living index, plus 4 percent. The index is published by the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The San Francisco index was at 9.9 percent as of April 30, 1982.

Other requests by the teachers include a 28-to-one student teacher ratio in grades kindergarten through five and a 29-to-one ratio in grades six through 12.

Teachers have asked for provisions to share jobs, extra duty pay increases, a new calendar that cuts the school days by one, and an extra $5,000 life insurance benefit.

The board did not make any public comments on the proposal.

STAFF SALARIES are sure to play a major part in the budget cuts as they continue, but so far programs have been the first on the chopping block.

At the May 25 session, trustees reviewed a series of administrative council recommendations on program cuts and the effect on the budget.

The largest item on the recommendation list was a proposal to budget for four teachers above the negotiated ratio, which will cost the district an estimated $116,000.

The administration recommended that the board only include funds in the budget for one extra teacher, which would save an estimated $87,000.

However, except for Clayton, trustees decided they will leave the money in and take it out later if the additional teachers are not needed. The four teachers would be in addition to the instructors already under contract.

"We can always take it out, but it's harder to put it back in," Trustee Harold Santee said.

Trustee Barbara Sanford agreed. She said it was "paramount" that the board retain the money to ensure that qualified staff can be hired if necessary.

Sanford's concern was that once the staff assignments have been completed, there may

BUSING FOR students who participate in the split reading program will probably be continued next year. The Carmel Unified School District Board of Education included funds in the budget to bus the students. The board also decided to spend $39,000 to replace a mid-size bus. Above is one of the older models which will continue service next fall.

be a need for a teacher in a specific field. If the board waits until later to provide funds, "we may not get the one most qualified," she said.

Clayton, in his "no" vote, argued that the board should stick with the negotiated ratio.

TRUSTEES also tackled an administrative recommendation that the district postpone buying a new mid-size bus for $39,000.

"I think I would rather see safe buses first than anything else. The buses must be safe," said Santee, who joined with fellow trustees to include funds for a new bus.

In other action, trustees:

- Dropped one teacher at Carmel Valley High School to save $23,000. (See related story this issue)

- Included funds for a music program since a parents' group has announced it will raise the funds. (See related story, this issue)

- Retained $6,000 for a part-time coordinator for the gifted students program.

- Decided to charge $4.50 for diploma covers which would raise an estimated $900.

- Rejected a plan to add a library assistant in the elementary schools, which would have cost $5,000.

- Refused to budget $10,000 for a study hall and two campus supervisors at Carmel High School.

- Retained $7,000 for busing students in the split reading program.

- Budgeted $1,000 for accreditation.

- Left out funds to refurbish the cafeteria at Carmel High School estimated at $5,000.

- Retained the two swim programs at Carmel High School and Carmel Valley High School provided the two become financially self-sufficient next year. The cost was estimated at $8,700.

- Rejected a proposal to budget $5,000 for an after-school sports program at Carmel Middle School.

Although trustees took these actions, the budget has not been finalized and changes can be made until August or September.

In a related budget matter, trustees decided to budget about $350 in funds this fiscal year to join a lawsuit against the state.

The lawsuit demands that the state pay for programs that it mandates.

GRAND OPENING!

Officials urge early kindergarten registration

Parents of children who will enter kindergarten next fall are asked to register early to help Carmel Unified School District officials plan class sizes, curriculum and teaching positions.

Kindergarten registration is accepted Monday through Fridays from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the offices of Tularcitos and River Schools. Registration at Captain Cooper School in Big Sur is from 8 a.m. until noon.

Children must be four years, nine months old on or before Sept. 1 and a complete physical examination is required before school begins.

Parents are asked to bring a birth certificate and proof of immunization when they register their children.

Under a new boundary line adopted this spring, children who live east of Valley Greens Drive will attend Tularcitos and those who reside west of the street will attend River School.

Current registration figures indicate 30 students will attend Tularcitos and 65 have enrolled in the kindergarten program at River School for the full term.

With the closing of Woods and Carmelo Schools, district officials say accurate enrollment projections are imperative for this fall because they must determine staff assignments and curriculum.

LIMIT

DENSITY and GROWTH

Of five candidates for Monterey Peninsula Airport Director June 8, only one is not a general aviation pilot with close ties to aviation interests: Monterey attorney Dorothy L. Washington.

She's a frequent business traveler and strong supporter of improved passenger schedules and service. But, she strongly opposes unwarranted development. "I believe any growth must follow a demonstrated need," she says. "I favor the Monterey Peninsula Airport remaining essentially a small commuter airport." Along with that... "I support keeping a greater share of revenue generated by the Airport within the District. It is imperative that the Airport remain free of property tax support."

Dorothy Washington's experience in community and professional areas includes: • Charter member of the Monterey County Women Lawyers Association • Referee in the State Bar Court • Commissioner on the Natividad Hospital Advisory Committee • Member of the executive board of the National Women's Political Caucus of Monterey County. She has practiced law 9 years with emphasis on copyright and intellectual property law, and has been a court liaison and administrator. She holds the B.A. degree from Case Western Reserve University and the Juris Doctor degree from the University of Southern California School of Law.

Plan committee to meet tonight at city hall

THE CARMEL General Plan Advisory Committee will continue its review of the housing element when it meets at 7:30 tonight (June 3) at city hall.

Tonight, committee members are expected to make several policy recommendations on housing that will be sent to the planning commission and city council later this year for approval.

This will be the second meeting on housing for committee members, who reviewed support data and background information in May.

One of the key issues is whether the city should allow "second kitchens" as a way to alleviate some of the housing crunch in Carmel.

General plan consultant Earth Metrics has recommended that the city include provisions for second kitchens in its new plan.

Second kitchens are banned in Carmel because of previous council concern over esthetics and the creation of duplexes in Carmel, which is generally regarded as a single-family residential community, said planning director Bob Griggs.

Bike Trek applications open For September event

The American Lung Association of Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo counties has announced that applications for the Mission Coast Bike Trek, a seven day, 350 mile bike tour, are available.

ties. It will end Sept. 19 in Salinas.

The Lung Association will provide leadership, route, campsites, food, and back-up vehicle support. Participants will provide personal equipment and raise pledges to support Lung Association programs.

The purpose of the trek is to encourage bicycling, promote health, and raise funds to support a range of programs targeted for the prevention and control of lung disease.

Applications will be accepted through June 15. Space is limited; participants will be chosen on a first come basis. Participants must be at least 16 years of age.

An orientation to acquaint potential participants with the Trek and Lung Association program will be given June 1-2.

If it's convenient for you to bank at midnight on the way home from a movie, you can at The National Bank of Carmel.

Now we have a 24-Hour Teller on duty at our office on Dolores Street.

What our new teller lacks in personality, is more than made up by efficiency. With the push of a few buttons, you can get cash anytime day or night from your checking or savings account. . . make deposits . . . even transfer money from one account to another.

What's more, your 24-Hour Teller card lets you get cash day or night at hundreds of banking locations throughout California, Oregon and Washington.

At the same time, we do not want automated banking to replace personal banking. So to make it easier for you to come in and see us, we have extended hours: 10 to 5 weekdays, 10 to 6 Fridays.

We hope the career woman who sent us the request we've reprinted above likes our new hours well enough to bank with us.

Business BeatNew businesses
open as old ones close

By FLORENCE MASON

The news of more businesses closing would be dismal if it were not for the fact that new and optimistic entrepreneurs always seem to be waiting in the wings.

PLAZA SALON GETS A NEW LEASE ON LIFE

Carmel Plaza finally has a tenant for the third level space formerly occupied by Armand's Hair Salon. If the new owners' experience, enthusiasm and community orientation can bring it about, they will be most successful. "Sim and Friends Salon for Hair" is owned by Sim Simpson and his wife, Linda, who came from Los Angeles about a year ago.

Both Simpsons have owned their own salons in Southern California. Mrs. Simpson speaks with quiet pride of her husband's accomplishments in the field: "He had a salon and cosmetology school," she said, "and he has won more than 78 trophies and awards, including one U.S. championship. He has also written books and produced films on hairdressing and has done some work for television."

Their enthusiasm is for this area, as well as for their work. "I was born and raised in Los Angeles," Mrs. Simpson said, "but I've always loved this part of the country." She and her husband plan to bring a "real class, quality operation" to their Plaza location. "We think it is especially important to listen to the clients; they know their hair best."

Sim and Friends is a full-service salon which includes manicures, pedicures and complete hair care services. Eventually, the Simpsons hope to offer massage and facials. Mrs. Simpson said they also intend to be contributors to their chosen community, "not just takers." That may be in the form of work for charity, fashion shows, or other community service.

Eventually, there will be eight workers in the salon. Returning to the area is Pat Blair, and another of the operators on deck for the opening is Tiffany Barlow.

The Simpsons live in Pacific Grove and enjoy a location right across from the bay. However, another goal is to move to Carmel and be able to walk to work. Such a move, they figure, would add to their becoming more truly a part of the community they are so enthusiastic about.

SWEATERS...AND A SEARCH FOR CHARACTER

The Paradise mall wasn't his first choice as a location for his new shop, St. Moritz Sweaters, but that's where Tomas Korper's shop will open to replace Lloyd's Shoes in the rear of the mall.

"I'll try to find a way to give the space character," Korper told the Business License and Code Review Board. "I'm working with a designer. Laub (Paul Laub, owner of the mall) is trying to improve the whole area too."

The news from Argentina has special meaning for Korper, who is "a bit worried" about his ability to continue to import the sweaters made there and sold at St. Moritz Sweaters. He'll start off with a good supply of cashmere and pure wool sweaters, some of which are handmade. They'll be for both men and women, perhaps also for children eventually. And

Korper plans to add skirts to complement the sweaters that are his specialty.

Why is this Argentinian opening a business in Carmel? For at least one practical reason: "It's cold enough here for sweaters." And also because he likes our trees. He heard about them and other attractive features of the area through "mouth-to-mouth" information, as he put it.

Korper, his wife Marta and their two young daughters plan to live here, at least until everything is going smoothly for St. Moritz Sweaters. Then...well, that may depend on how things are in Argentina.

MEANWHILE, NORWAY HOUSE...

...is becoming a family business. And it is a most interesting story, one that won't surprise dedicated Carmel lovers.

Many years ago, Gunburg Grinde spent one day in Carmel on a visit here from Norway. That was all she needed to make a decision that some day she would live in Carmel. Sixteen years ago she accomplished that. But it was only the first step; in due course she succeeded in getting her whole family to the area.

The next character in our story is Mrs. Grinde's daughter, Else Fulgham. She discovered Norway House and went in to buy some gifts, was offered a job and has been there ever since. Else Fulgham's partnership with Jean Thomas has just been dissolved and a new partnership has been formed. Owners are Gunburg Grinde, Else Fulgham, her brother Carl Grinde and a family friend, Patricia McGuinness.

Mrs. Fulgham told me the business would continue to be the Norway House Carmelites and tourists know. "Some minor improvements to dress it up but the same merchandise — gifts and clothing — almost all of it from Norway," she said.

Gunburg Grinde, who started it all, will be actively involved in the store, after spending many years as a housekeeper in Carmel Valley. Else Fulgham will of course continue her active role in the shop. She lives in Carmel Valley and has a 19-year-old son who is in school in Colorado.

Sandy Swain, planning commission representative on the license board, commented: "We're glad Else is staying in business; it's an asset to the village."

THESE TULIPLS WILL BE REAL

NB Flowers, a Carmel institution at Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde Street for more than 15 years, is moving to Su Vecino Court on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. The flowers and giftware shop will occupy the major portion of the space formerly occupied by The Tulip Basket.

It's not a move that owners Russell and Marjorie Comer really wanted to make. There is considerably less space, for one thing.

"It was hard to come to this decision," Mrs. Comer told the Business License and Code Review Board. "We considered sub-leasing some of the 2,800 sq. ft. we now have. We didn't need it all. But we couldn't figure out a good way to do that, so we decided to move."

In contrast to some local business owners, the Comers are high in praise of their landlord, Robert Stanton. "He's an excellent landlord," Mrs. Comer said. "But it's a question of basic economics. We just don't have the business to support that much space. Christmas was fine for us, but it has been slow since then."

She said they noticed some decline in business even last fall.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTElect Bill Melendez . . .
the active candidate for Superintendent of Schools.

"In addition to the traditional
3 R's, I believe in these 3 R's:
*Respectful of your ideas,
Responsive to your needs,
ready to Represent all people.*"

Dr. Bill Melendez' adult life has been devoted to service to the public school system, as well as his community. This commitment, and his board experience, makes him eminently qualified to be your next Superintendent of Schools for Monterey County.

Where does he stand?

First and foremost, Bill Melendez values American Education. He believes it is the keystone of our democracy. He is committed to strengthening the system for the generations to come.

Secondly, he believes in fiscal accountability. As an administrator, he has always insisted that the tax payer get "a dollars worth of value out of every educational dollar spent." As an Educational Administrator he has worked to stay within his budget and even reduce it.

"I believe in a dollars worth of value out of every educational dollar spent."

Third, he is people-oriented. He believes in face-to-face communication between elected officials, administrators, teachers, students, parents and the community. If all these areas cooperate the quality of education can be improved and the cost of education can be reduced. "I have always kept all lines of communication open and I will continue this practice as your Superintendent of Schools."

The store ships many orders to the east, but there has been less demand for that. "There are lots of people here but after eating ice cream and cookies, going out to dinner, staying in a local motel, they haven't money left for any of the extras."

JENSEN'S GOES BASQUE

There are changes on Carmel Rancho Lane, too. One is that Jensen's Restaurant has new owners and an entirely new menu. Arlene and Armando Rios have brought Basque food and Basque style to the area at "Armando's Chalet Basque."

What that means is family-style serving. "Everything is served big," Mrs. Rios told me. Soup in a big tureen, to be ladled out. A huge salad bowl. Side dishes of spaghetti, lamb stew or potato salad. The entrees include chicken, fish, steak, port or lamb chops. Mr. and Mrs. Rios applied for a beer and wine license; if they are successful in getting that, complimentary wine will be added to the menu.

Armando Rios is, first of all, an insurance broker and will remain so. But he loves to cook. That love has been expressed as a volunteer for Meals on Wheels, where he cooked large quantities of food. And he also cooked for the Cabrillo Club, a Portuguese organization in Monterey. Now he'll be chief cook at Armando's, with Mrs. Rios as the hostess and one of the waitresses. She brings the Portuguese background; Armando is Spanish.

The couple lives close by on Rio Road. They have two daughters and a son, the latter a student at Middle School. The restaurant represents realization of a long-held dream to them. "We enjoyed Basque food in many places in the San Joaquin Valley, and thought it would be wonderful to bring it to Carmel."

ON THE SAME STREET: TWO NEW BUILDINGS

Jeanelle Kaminske called to tell me that she and her husband, Roy, who works at Fort Ord, will put up a building near The Barnyard where they will lease space for retail shops. She said that Dick Catlin is building one there also. Each will have about 12,000 sq. ft.

Mrs. Kaminske, who has been a Broker with Carmel Valley Realty for 12 years, said the building will be finished early next year. She said there is a demand for more retail store space.

"It's not so much for tourist-oriented business, but there are a number of things not available 'on this side of the hill' for local residents."

To determine what those things are, she has collected information. Some of the needs she uncovered: stores that sell children's shoes, TV and stereo, furniture and carpets. She wants feedback from the public about other needs and urges anyone who wants to suggest something to call her at Carmel Valley Realty. "We're being selective," she said. "We really want them to be successful and permanent businesses."

The new building will be designed by the same architect who designed Quail Lodge and will have similar roof lines with wide overhangs. The materials will be redwood and exposed aggregate.

SHELLY'S DONE IT AGAIN!

Some people change jobs or locations when the need for something different in their lives takes over. But Shelly Schachter, owner and sole operator of Shelly's Kitchen in Carmel Valley Village, just changes menus and meals to make "a creative change" right where he is. So now it's back to dinner, two days each week.

When the tiny restaurant first opened in 1975, Shelly served dinner twice a week. Then — for a change — he switched to lunch only. Now he keeps the lunch menus and hours "at least for the present" and as of this weekend (June 4-5) he'll also serve dinner on Friday and Saturday.

Some things don't change, however. Shelly said it's still a "no smoking, bring your own wine, reservations required" restaurant. Everything is still made "from scratch" by Shelly, too.

Before he became content to make creative changes within one role and setting, Schachter was a family therapist and for a number of years one of the country's first "house-husbands."

WHERE ELSE IN THE WORLD?

The Monterey Peninsula has been picked for its world headquarters by combined companies that specialize in architects' and engineers' professional and general liability insurance.

Edward B. Howell of Carmel, president of the parent company, Design Professionals Finance Corporation, said the choice was made after a search in an "ever-widening circle" from the companies' present location in San Francisco. The reasons: "Land is reasonable, there is a good labor pool of semi-professional people, good transportation, and a fine climate. Also, housing costs are not quite as high as in the Bay area." At least 30 employees will relocate to this area and Howell said the companies expect to hire about 18 more employees before the end of the year.

The Monterey Insurance and Financial Center will be built at 2959 Monterey-Salinas Highway (68). Some of the space in the 62,000 sq. ft. center will be available to other tenants. Until it is completed, DPFC, Design Professionals Insurance Co. and Risk Analysis and Research Corp. will be in temporary quarters on Garden Road. DPFC is almost wholly owned by design professionals in private practice.

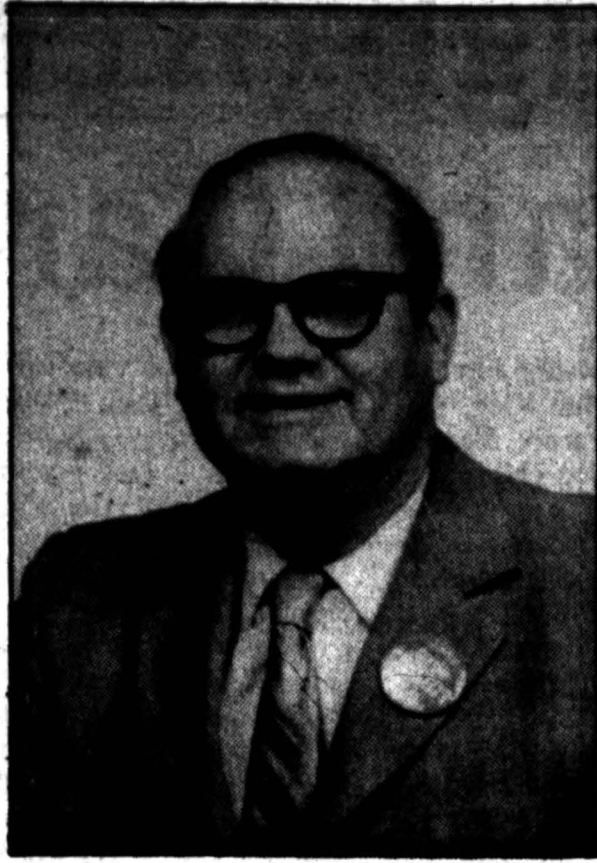

Howell and his wife, Joan, have lived in the High Meadow area for a year.

WE STAND CORRECTED

Sylvia's Pastry Shop has not closed; it is alive and very well in The Barnyard. In connection with my recent story about Ken Schemmel's plans for a Scandinavian Import store, and possibly a Danish bakery, I wrote that baker Bent Gehring, who worked for Sylvia's bakery in Carmel "until that store closed" was slated to join Schemmel if the bakery does become a reality.

A call from owner Ole Blem set us straight. Sylvia's did close in Carmel in 1978, but only because it was moving to The Barnyard. In fact, Gehring, had moved to Solvang some time before that change.

We appreciated Blem's call and hasten to set the record straight.

Emotions run high over plan to close Carmel Woods and Carmelo schools

Story and photographs
By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

AS SUMMER vacation nears, students scurry to obtain scrawled autographed messages from classmates, friends exchange promises to stay in touch, and daydreams shift to long hours at the beach or on the baseball diamond.

"No more pencils, no more books, no more teacher's dirty looks," the children laugh as June 11 creeps closer.

June 11 marks the end of the term. Mention the date and watch the smiles grow. But this year, there is a dark cloud that hangs over June 11.

That cloud is the closing of Carmel Woods and Carmelo elementary schools — a deci-

"I wish the school would stay open so my brother could come here. I might not be going to the school my friends are. I wish I could stay here until sixth grade."

sion made so long ago that it is but a distant memory. However, the closings remain an emotional issue.

By the time September rolls around, a lease agreement will probably be in the works for the use of Carmelo School by private interests and the engines of the bulldozers may be warmed up and ready to demolish Woods School.

The decision to close the two schools was prompted by the cold, hard facts that there is just not enough money or student enrollment to justify keeping the facilities open.

But when you sweep away the mounds of paperwork documents, figures, ratios and dollar signs, there remain the people who are involved.

With the term almost completed and the doors nearer to closure, the Pine Cone/Outlook talked to the very people affected by the move — principals, teachers, students and parents.

There is no consensus about what should have been done, but the common denominator is a feeling that somehow, these neighborhood schools could have been saved.

There is no agreement, either, about what should have been done, but there is much feeling on the part of those affected. There is anger, sadness, regret and even reluctant acceptance.

The word that Carmelo School would be closed and then leased to private interests came as "no shock" to Carolyn Rice, who has been president of the Parent Faculty Club for two years and has two children at the school.

"This has been a thing that has been banded around. I don't think it was anything new or any great shock," she said. "It's been hanging over our heads for years. People have always had it in the back of their minds. Of course, none of us liked it."

Asked if she thought the decision to close the school was right, Mrs. Rice replied: "That's neither here nor there. I put the neighborhood schools in the same category as God, motherhood and apple pie. I'm not going to waste time being bitter. As far as I am concerned, what is done is done."

DESPITE her firm belief that the decision is now water under the bridge, Mrs. Rice is nostalgic when she talks about Carmelo School.

"You just hate to lose such a nice facility. I think what people love about this school is the neighborhood school concept," she said.

Mrs. Rice recalled the time the Parent Club was working on the new running track.

"There were 20 chiefs and no Indians. I remember when we found an 1834 nickel. We all got so excited. Then we found out the coin club had been out the week before and left coins out to hunt. We had called up a coin dealer thinking that we had found a buried treasure. He said it was worth about 20 cents."

Rice also complimented the staff of Tularcitos School, which has "gone out of their way to make us feel welcome."

Carmelo School fourth graders Ethan Tancredi and Alyssa Dunn said they were disappointed that the school will close.

"I kind of like it because it is small. I have some friends that are going to go to River. I'll miss them," Alyssa said. "I made a lot of friends here. I kind of wished it had stayed open until I got to junior high. I like the teachers here and I learned a lot."

"Ethan has attended Carmelo since preschool. 'I wish the school would stay open so my brother could come here. I might not be going to the school my friends are. I wish I could stay here until sixth grade.'"

Most of the 120 students at Carmelo will be bused to Tularcitos School, about seven miles away.

To help ease the transition, a series of meetings between parents, staff and administrators of both schools has been held. Children from Carmelo also visited Tularcitos as part of an orientation day May 28.

Similar programs have been held between Woods and River School. Enid Day and Mary Gulla differ in their opinions of the effect the closing will have on their children.

"I don't mind the closing. I feel that a larger school can provide more services," Mrs. Gulla said. "There's something to be said for the smallness and closeness. In my situation, I feel my child can get a better education with the closing."

Mrs. Day disagreed: "I think it's too bad. I think it's more personal. The kids don't get lost in the shuffle."

Mrs. Day, who began her education in kindergarten at Carmelo School, said she benefitted from the small school.

"I don't think the tradeoffs are worth it. Security is so important when you're younger. Also for the parents. You know all the teachers know your children."

BETTY ROTH has taught at Carmelo for 14 years, but next fall her assignment is a second grade class at Tularcitos.

"I just think that in about five years, with the baby boom, we're going to need the school back again. This is the growth area of Carmel," she said.

assigned to Tularcitos, but is "looking at other options in the district."

"It's kind of neat to be at a school where you can talk to the parents on a one-to-one basis," he said. "They are more than just a voice on the telephone."

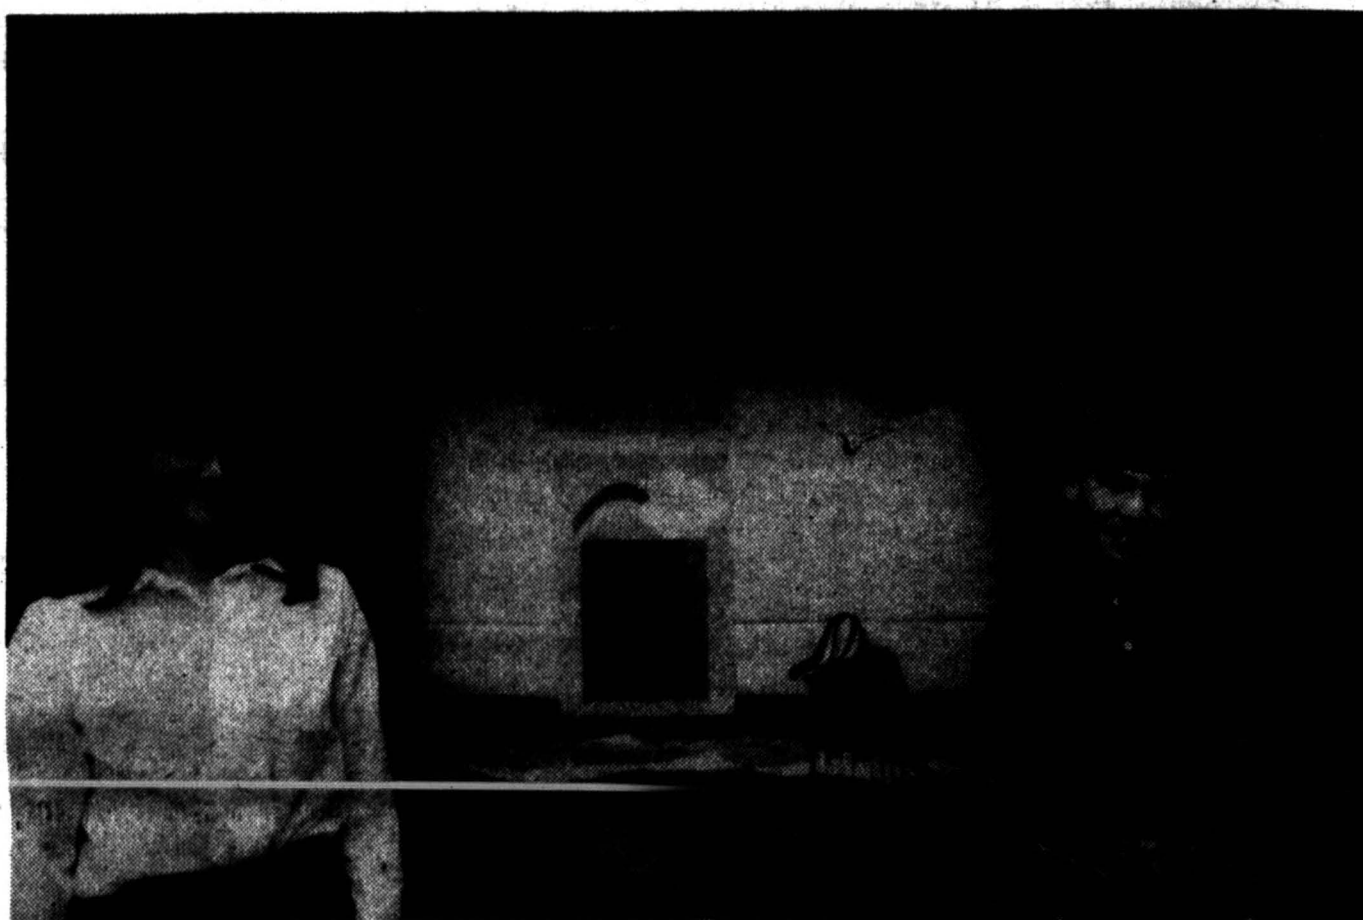

With most of the intra-school meetings completed and teaching assignments made, Sheckler said he believes the only major obstacle left to tackle is the physical move of the facility.

"Teachers can store up a lot of things over the years," he laughed.

On a more serious note, Sheckler said he does not feel that the students will experience problems with the move.

"The kids adapt easily," he said. "The kids will work it out really well."

"I feel really nostalgic. It's just a wonderful facility. It's a family school. All the children know each other and all the teachers know all the children."

Melinda Douglas, a second grade teacher, was breathless as she loaded her students into a bus which was to take them on a field trip paid for by the Parent Faculty Club.

Betty MacGowan was a teacher at Tularcitos School when that edition hit the newsstands. Today, she is retired and serves as a volunteer aide at Woods.

"Leon Panetta was an eighth grader and we were just a little country school," Mrs. MacGowan said. "I retired in 1970 and moved to Carmel by Woods."

"These are all my good friends here. I love children. I still want to continue with the children," she said. "I've always had an interest in the school. The first principal and staff members were my friends."

"I feel sad about it closing. I think what I'm going to miss the most are the children and their parents. Being a small school, the children have gotten so much. I just hate to see the classes get so big and involved. Everything is so much more personal in small groups."

Principal Jerry Traynor will be the last for Woods School.

"I think it's unfortunate, but I think the times dictate the closing of the school. It's a sad note in our district's history."

"I have grown to love this school dearly. The staff has really become a big family; they're very close. I didn't think I would become so attached, but this school has become very dear to my heart."

Traynor has received a one-year leave of absence from the district for 1982-83.

Like the principals of Tularcitos and Carmelo, Traynor and River School Principal Vance Frasier have worked closely with parents and staff to ease the transition.

There have been several joint meetings of the faculty and the two parents clubs have met. Students from Woods will be bused to River School for an orientation week.

SANDY OGDEN, who has three children at Woods School, said she believes that

AN EMPTINESS in an otherwise bustling playground at Woods School gives an indication of the future for that site and Carmelo School. Both will be closed at the end of the term. (Michael R. Gardner photographs)

THE FATE of the Mid-Valley Parent Co-Op Nursery School at Carmelo School is up in the air since that facility will close. Above, Anie Day points a picture. Mom, Enid Day, "there must be some way" the school can be saved.

"We love a lot of the teachers. I just don't think that closing Woods down is efficient," she said. "I think we will need the site eventually."

Mrs. Ogden said that the additional costs and busing will probably end up being more than what the trustees have predicted.

Cathy Morago regrets the closing of Woods School.

"I don't think it is a wise decision because I am concerned about the future, not this year or the next. Education is important at the lower levels. That's where the kids learn the basics."

"I would hate to see a developer come in. It would create an increase in traffic and there's lots of kids here. I don't think they're going to save that much," she said.

Mrs. Morago predicted that there will be an increase in school-age children in the Woods area within a few years. She added that housing prices are the same in town as they are in Carmel Valley, which means younger families will move into the Woods neighborhood.

"I think it's unfortunate, but I think the times dictate the closing of the school. It's a sad note in our district's history."

"I think it's a short term alleviation. I think they should look at the entire picture. I think the decision is a short-sighted one," she said.

"You know, the one thing I'm really going to miss is the sound of the children playing in the playground at lunchtime. That is such a beautiful sound."

Like their peers at Carmelo, Woods School teachers Jack McCormack and Susan Estes say they understand the financial problems, but would like somehow for their site to be saved.

"I can understand the closing, but I can't understand the sale of the property," said McCormack, a third and fourth grade teacher. "I think they should project ahead and keep the property. They should look for alternative uses instead of letting it go."

McCormack, who has taught at Woods School for seven years, has been assigned to a fourth grade class at River School.

He said the biggest concern faced by staff when the closings were officially announced, was "the loss of the closeness with the staff and the immediate community."

Ms. Estes, who has been a librarian and teacher in the district for the past decade, may lose her job because she is on a temporary contract basis.

But she agrees that the closings are a financial necessity. "It really makes me sad. I know they need to save money. I'm just sorry to see it sold and torn down. The facility itself is so beautiful. You can't replace this."

"In the future you may need it. I hate to see one of the last neighborhood schools close. But I understand enrollment is going down. It would be senseless to keep it open, but I don't want to see it torn down."

Ms. Estes said she agreed with an earlier proposal that the district sell the lower playground for residential development, but keep the facility open for a district office site and perhaps a kindergarten through second grade school. School officials say the district office may have to be moved. The office site is advertised for lease.

Fourth grader Krista Gustavson said the closing made her "unhappy" and "sad."

says that a mid-valley nursery school is "definitely needed" because so many parents work. (Photos by Michael R. Gardner)

Fifth graders Heather Broten and Christi Gibowicz said they enjoyed the small classrooms and felt that they learn more with fewer students in the room.

"It's a small school and it's not so crowded. My teacher can help me more and I learn more," said Christi.

"River School is going to be too crowded. They really should keep Woods School open," Heather said.

River School Principal Vance Frasier and Tularcitos School Principal Mary Jane Stanford face the increase in enrollment and additional staff members when September arrives.

Ms. Stanford said Tularcitos and Carmelo share a common bond because many of the kids participate in Little League together and live in the Valley.

"We feel we will be enriched by having the children and staff here," she said. "I think the parents have been very happy with Carmelo and I hope to keep the programs together. Frasier said he believes a larger staff will help his faculty teach better."

"Our staff is looking forward to having them. With a larger staff, it is more interesting and creative. I think we can learn from each other," he said.

Frasier said he supported the decision to close the schools because "it obviously was getting too expensive."

But, he disagrees with the proposal to demolish Woods School.

"I have mixed feelings like everyone else, especially when I see that beautiful school (Woods)," he said. "I think it would be a disaster to demolish the school. I see too many useful things for it."

Frasier said there are many legal and technical problems over the sale or lease of the school, but added he would like to see the district or city convert the site into low and moderate income housing units, a senior citizens center or offices for city government.

A key issue that has not yet been resolved by the district is the future of the two nursery school programs at Carmelo and Woods School.

The Woods School Extended Day-Care Program is in its second year of operation. Parents pay $2 an hour and an average of 15 students attend the afternoons-only program, said teacher Christina Price.

Ms. Price said she hopes the board will decide to move the program to River School.

"I think it serves a lot of working parents and is convenient since it's right here at the school," she said. "I would love to see it at River School."

Marilyn MacMasters used the same argument to keep the pre-school cooperative and day care program open at Carmelo.

That program serves about 20 students and is operated through the Carmel Unified School District Adult School. The pre-school is open from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and parents must spend three hours a week with the program and two hours in a special class. Cost of the program is $40 per month.

The day care program has an average of 12 students daily and parents are charged $1.50 per hour. Supt. William Rand said to keep the two nursery school programs they must become financially self-sufficient.

The latest report indicates that the Carmelo program is slightly over budget and the Woods Program is in the black. Rand said the board will consider keeping the Carmelo program at its present site until the facility is leased. If only a portion of the site is leased, the program may be allowed to remain there.

He added that the Woods program may be moved to River School.

Both decisions must meet the approval of the school board, he pointed out.

Early years as Carmelite shaped Mayor Townsend

By FLORENCE MASON

CHARLOTTE TOWNSEND made history when she became the second female mayor of Carmel April 13. But few citizens - possibly even those who worked hard on her election campaign - know all the dimensions of Mayor Townsend's versatile character.

The mayor considers herself a Carmelite, through and through — one who has lived in the same Carmel home off and on since the late 1930s and one who loves the ocean.

Her love of water was nurtured by the lakes, streams, rivers and the ocean outside Tacoma, Wash. near American Lake where she was born. Her father, an investment banker, had offices in Tacoma and San Francisco; for a time the family, including Charlotte's younger sister, Donna Ruth, lived in Hillsborough.

"My father survived the 1929 crash," Mayor Townsend said matter-of-factly. "But he was leveled in 1931." The family's lifestyle was leveled, too. Privileges and servants were left behind when the family piled into a seven passenger Packard and made its way to Carmel.

Why Carmel? For years, the family had spent vacations on the Monterey Peninsula — all the way from Tacoma, and then from Hillsborough. In those days it was possible to live a simpler, less formal life here, she recalled.

Charlotte Townsend (her maiden name, which she re-assumed after her divorce) was in the first grade when the Townsends came to Carmel. When she attended Sunset School, she was by her own description "skinny with big dark eyes and straight brown hair." She stayed at Sunset through the eighth grade, went first to Monterey High School and then, when it opened, to Carmel High. Those school years were busy ones and they reveal the influence of her parents.

Her mother was active in the Girl Scout program in Carmel as was her father with the Boy Scouts. In a curious twist of fate, Charlotte Townsend's father was one of the first to recognize the need for a sanitary district; his daughter Charlotte would one day be president of the Carmel Sanitary District board of directors.

Father and daughter both played on Abalone League baseball teams. And both were involved in local theater — the daughter in fairy stories produced at the Forest

Theater and the Golden Bough. "Lots of famous people came to Carmel," she said. "I remember one time when Charlie Chaplin was right there in the front row, laughing and crying! He came to the area on his yacht, the 'Panacea,' which was anchored at Stillwater Cove."

There were several family homes before the Townsends settled into the big shingled house at San Antonio and Santa Lucia when Charlotte was in the fourth or fifth grade. It was - and is - a hospitable house. Mayor Townsend now rents the entire lower floor.

At Bach Festival time, the tenants and their landlady may have to make do elsewhere since most of the house will be turned over to visiting musicians. Most of the horn section of the Bach Festival orchestra will be in residence for several weeks.

World War II interrupted the Townsend family's life in Carmel. Charlotte's father, although old enough to have escaped the draft, went back into the service. Charlotte took over the car and the garden, two loves that were to stay with her throughout her life.

There were also sports and horses to keep her happy and busy.

"I was a reader, too, a bit of a loner, out on the water whenever I could be." She also wrote a column for the Pine Cone's predecessor, The Cymbal. It was a fourth-grader's view of what was going on in the town.

During the war years, Charlotte's mother had a unique approach to education: if there was something better to do than going to school, she and the girls did it. One "better" activity that Charlotte adored was skiing, long before it became the very popular sport it is today. There are trophies somewhere that have Charlotte Townsend's name on them: West Coast Junior Champion and Intercollegiate Champion.

Charlotte's mother hired tutors to help the girls keep up with their classes when they went off on their adventures together. Concerned about Charlotte's ability to meet college entrance requirements, however, her mother enrolled Charlotte in the Douglas School, a forerunner of Robert Louis Stevenson School, as a senior.

When it came time to select a college, Stanford seemed a logical choice because the family had known many Stanford faculty members and students who vacationed here over the years. Given the casual approach to Charlotte's education and the fact that few women attended Stanford in those days, her mother was somewhat surprised when her daughter was accepted.

What were Charlotte Townsend's thoughts and goals as she packed her bags and went off to Palo Alto?

"It was hard to set goals in wartime," she said. "I started in philosophy and literature, switched to social sciences. I had some thought about going to law school and specializing in family law, or children's rights, but money got scarce."

Travel slipped into her life quietly. First came an opportunity to go east to visit friends. Somehow that evolved into a planned four-month tour of Europe that lasted nine years.

The cost of living in some areas of Europe helped to dictate her location and activities. She first lived in France where there were family friends. Because of post-war conditions, living was not easy, and Charlotte decided on Switzerland "because it was clean and less expensive."

She enrolled in the University of Zurich and studied comparative literature under a professor who had been at Stanford. With that and attendance at other schools on the Continent, she had two and one-half years toward a doctorate before she had her B.A. degree!

After several years' separation, Charlotte, her mother and her sister were reunited in Europe. Her mother's illness — rheumatoid arthritis — was to be a major factor in Charlotte's life for many years to come.

Charlotte found a job with the U.S. Department of Defense in Austria. Although it was not her nature to welcome being tied down to a two-year contract, she fulfilled that obligation and stayed on three more years to help support her mother, who by that time was separated from Charlotte's father. When her mother became too ill to be treated in military hospitals she was brought back to a hospital in San Francisco and eventually to the home in Carmel.

Charlotte's return to the Peninsula was an adventure as she drove cross-country by herself one stormy December. Once home, she began the task of "refreshing" the family home. Then it was back to Stanford and the deferred degree. Shortly thereafter her mother, Ruth Townsend, died.

Charlotte's lifelong interest in books was revived during the ensuing years with a course in library science at Monterey Peninsula College. For more than a year she worked as the assistant to the county school librarian in Salinas. Other jobs followed: cashier at the Blue Bird (forerunner of Scandia Restaurant) and then manager there. She also worked for Talbott Ties, briefly, and was office manager of the Pine Cone.

Thoughts of getting another degree — in library science — were in her mind. But something intervened. Frank Lloyd, a friend who now shares city council duties with the new mayor, told her that a ship needed a crew. On 36 hours' notice, she took off on a sailing ship for Hawaii "with cognac, a tennis racket and one suitcase."

"That was hairy! We didn't see anyone else for 14 days." The ship developed leaks. There was no radio contact and they almost missed Hawaii.

To finance her return trip, Charlotte worked in a car rental agency. When the time came to return by plane the contrast with her earlier voyage seemed "unreal...all of a sudden, I was there!"

She came close once again to that elusive degree in library science with new plans to attend San Jose State University. Instead, she took an opportunity to become assistant to the general manager at Laguna Seca raceway.

To explain that attraction, we'll have to pause and mention the mayor's love for, and competence in, auto racing, an interest that may not have had anything to do with her being elected the second woman mayor in Carmel's history. But it does have to do with the versatility and strengths of her character.

"I went to school and learned how to drive, then took part in auto racing in my Porsche at Laguna Seca, at airfields in Santa Barbara and elsewhere. It offered a complete change and I didn't have to be away from my mother very long. I loved the challenge! But it was very relaxed, not high-powered like today. We had picnics. Everyone knew everyone else. Companionship was a big part of it for me — not competition."

Then she married. It's not a subject on which she dwells for long. "I met Squire Hurst here, through a friend," Charlotte said. "After just a few days he left. I went to visit him in Chicago. We came back and were married here, in City Hall."

That part of her matrimonial history was obviously relished. "We looked everywhere. None of the churches we liked was available and we were intrigued that this (city hall) looked so much like one. It was Dorothy Chapman's idea, in fact, and we had to get the approval of the city council - over some objections. I think they were afraid we'd be setting a precedent! It became a kind of village festival, with the reception in the Court of the Fountains."

The Hursts were married 16 years, during which they kept the Carmel home but lived for nine years in Chicago and longed to return. Hurst retired in 1972 and they did come back to Carmel with hopes the move would improve their marriage. But it was not enough and the couple divorced about three years ago.

Charlotte Townsend's career became a checkerboard in the next few years. She worked in social agencies, at Spencer's during the Christmas season, and at Mr. Peabody's in The Barnyard. The latter was a part-time "temporary" job that lasted three years.

While Charlotte was married and lived in Chicago she got involved in politics - first through "poll-watching," then as an active member of the League of Women Voters, concerned especially about the "unbelievable" corruption and nepotism she saw. When she returned, she rejoined the Carmel Citizens Committee, which she describes as "the oldest and most influential" organization of its kind in the area.

She was assistant to the president of that watchdog group and then a member of the board of directors. She started to attend meetings of the Carmel City Council. Then, when there was a last-minute dropout in the campaign for a position on the Board of Directors the Carmel Sanitary District, someone on the city council suggested that Charlotte file.

"I had no idea what I was getting into. I'm not a red-hot environmentalist, although I seem to be known as such. I had been a member of the Sierra Club since I was a student at Stanford. But this was something else."

She and Ken McGinnis (who has just succeeded her as president of the district board) ran as a team and both were elected. "I would never have done it if I had known the time and energy it would take. The amount of reading I had to do, alone, was unbelievable."

Her work for the U.S. government in Europe had given Charlotte Townsend the bureaucratic background she needed for the job. She also developed a philosophy about administrative tasks that is still part of her credo as she occupies the mayor's chair:

"You work as hard as you can and leave it as much improved as you possibly can. And you depend on staff. You find the best possible people and then you rely on them. No one person can deal with all the complexities of government alone."

It also took the consideration of her employers at Mr. Peabody's in The Barnyard.

"There aren't many bosses who would accept my need for putting the sanitary district first," Mayor Townsend said, "but they could, and did. The fact that it was a part-time job helped, too."

Charlotte Townsend served six years on the sanitary district board, with four terms as president, and oversaw an organization that serves approximately 16,000 people, with 20 employees and an annual operating budget of some $2 million. It was excellent training for her role as mayor, she believes.

"I had all that experience with meetings, and running them," she said. "I had the background of getting things done, in these very council chambers. I tried to develop a sense of cooperation and focus on how to accomplish things, to concentrate on common goals, not individual differences. I carried that experience into my campaign for mayor."

Charlotte's experience with the sanitary district motivated the people who urged her to run for mayor, she said. Although she prefers not to name them, she did say that they included more than one member of the city council. Until that time, she had never considered running for city office. She sought others' opinions and was told: "There are problems. If you don't do something about them, you are part of them." Still, she only decided at the last minute to run. That made it hard for her to gear up and get into the right frame of mind for the campaign.

(Next week...the campaign, the mayor's beliefs about current issues, and how she views her first weeks as mayor of Carmel.)

The Mayor's Report

A time to pause and reflect

By CHARLOTTE TOWNSEND

It was an unusually cold morning Memorial Day when we gathered in Deven-dorf Park for moving, traditional ceremonies honoring our dead. There were flags, flowers, a firing squad and speeches by American Legion officials, Sam Farr and myself.

With apologies to those who may be "hearing" this for the second time, I would like to share with you some excerpts from my talk because I feel that some of these ideas, even if inadequately expressed, are both "dateless" and extremely important.

In the hurry, bustle and pressure of everyday living, we are all prone to minimize or even simply forget some of the things which are basic to our very existence. It is therefore very appropriate that we pause, in the midst of that hurry and bustle to reflect, to remember and to express our thanks for those who went before us and who made our life — as we know it — possible.

Those of us who live on the Monterey Peninsula know that we are especially "blessed," and I hope we all will reflect on this and try to express our appreciation and gratitude more often and in many ways. We read and hear of killings, wars and disasters in so much of the rest of the world, and we rather bemusedly watch our televisions record these horrors. It all seems somehow unreal and remote from our quiet, lovely village. But is it? Nowadays the world is a very small place and in a sense, every man is our neighbor.

How many of you remember the shelling of ships off our coast during World War II? And the almost evacuation of Carmel-by-the-Sea because of a suspected imminent invasion by Japanese? (My mother swore that she would take to the roof of our house and throw rocks — she always was a spirited, if somewhat impractical lady. Traditionally we have been a nation which valued the rights of the individual. But the type of warfare now facing us is more indiscriminating, more merciless than Genghis Khan or the Black Death.

Those of you who elected us look to the people in your government for leadership. Therefore, I feel I must try to express to you my concern, my fears that the very fabric of our life is in danger. It behooves us to remember, and to be grateful, but the question remains: "Will there be anyone after us to do those things?"

The president has announced that he will address the United States special session on disarmament next week. He has also announced of a high level delegation with members of ambassadorial rank "to discuss arms control and security issues." I certainly think that this group deserves our encouragement and our prayers. And it also behooves us to search out and support any other non-emotional effort to limit nuclear arms.

Last Saturday the World Security Council sponsored a meeting of experts in laser and particle beam weapons at All Saints' Church in Carmel. These scientists hope to prevent a nuclear catastrophe with defensive rather than offensive weapons. This certainly sounds like an idea worth exploring. Most especially because, not only is there danger from the Soviets (who while protesting peace, have engaged in a vast buildup of arms and repeated invasion and aggression throughout the world from Poland to Afghanistan) but also because there is the growing problem of countries who soon will have nuclear capability and who care very little or not at all about the destruction of civilians in their own, or other lands. Libya, Syria, China, Vietnam are a few names that come to mind.

To look for a moment on the brighter side: it is evident that although throughout history the bloodiest wars were, and still are fought on religious grounds, at present there is a definite movement toward ecumenism among many faiths and seemingly a movement toward many kinds of people. Among men and women also.

Traditionally, men have been the aggressors, women, the nurturers. Now faced with the prospect of the end of the world as we know it in half an hour, men and women are finding the same goals, the same values. Ellen Goodman wrote recently about these same values: "Values that put caretaking before missiles, love before glory, the urge to survive over the urge to fight."

It is always a good time for friendship, cooperation, and gratitude for all the good things we have, which were made possible by the courage and vision of those who have gone before us. It is those we honor when we gather for Memorial Day.

After the ceremonies, Sam Farr asked me for a cup of coffee and a chat. We discussed local and larger issues, such as city budgets, annexation questions and the Hatton Canyon roadway. The coffee was warming and so was this opportunity for open and easy communication.

Please do write or call me. I'm counting on you.

Farr wants to loosen salmon rules

California commercial salmon fishermen should be allowed "to fish enough to avoid bankruptcy in 1982," the State Assembly in effect told the federal government last week when it passed a resolution carried by Assemblyman Sam Farr (D-Carmel).

"We're asking President Reagan, Congress and the Commerce Department to allow our commercial fishermen to fish for salmon through Sept. 30 with no quotas or further closures," Farr said.

Farr is vice chairman of the Legislature's Joint Fisheries and Aquaculture Committee, which authored Senate Joint Resolution 35. The resolution passed the Assembly 68-0. It goes next back to the Senate for concurrence in Assembly amendments.

SJR 35 also:

- Asks Congress to conduct hearings in California in 1982 "to determine the effects of federal actions on the California commercial salmon fishery, and to determine what legislative or other actions may be needed to avoid further economic disasters for the California seafood industry and the local economies it supports and to provide greater certainty concerning federal actions in 1983 and thereafter;"

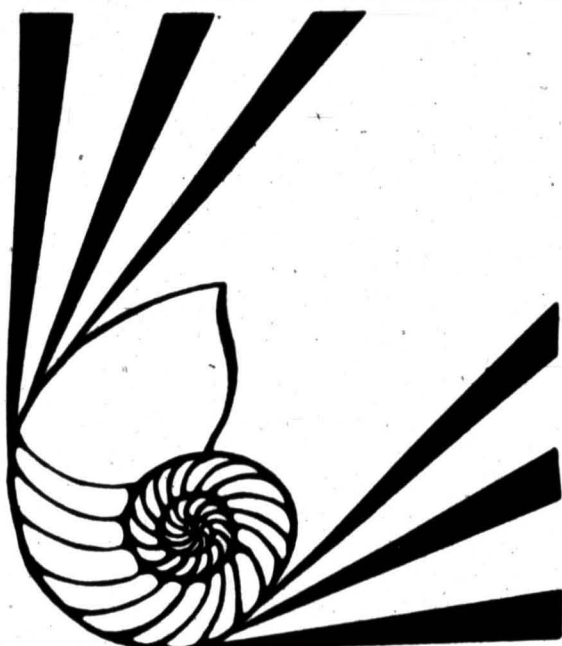

- Declares no confidence in the Salmon Plan Development Team of the Pacific Fishery Management Council (PFMC) and asks the federal government to provide for more balanced membership and representatives of California commercial salmon fishermen; and

- Supports an amendment by Congressman Leon Panetta (D-Carmel Valley) to the Magnuson Fisheries Conservation and Management Act to give California three seats on the PFMC, the federal agency that recommends fishery regulations to the Commerce Department.

Census paints a picture of Carmel and the Valley

By ROBERT MISKIMON

IF STATISTICS can be believed, the "typical" Carmelite is a white female 50 or more years of age who lives in a house valued at $155,900.

Those same composite statistics indicate that the "typical" Carmel Valley resident is a married, white male or female who owns a home worth $174,000.

Those rough demographic outlines emerge from the latest data released by the U.S. Census Bureau based on its 1980 population samples. The data have been forwarded to local and county governmental agencies for a variety of uses.

Information from the 1980 census confirms what has long been accepted as a fact of life: that Carmel and Carmel Valley residents, in comparison with other county and state residents, enjoy a relatively high standard of living.

Income figures from the 1980 census have not yet been compiled and released by the federal government, and are not expected until "around the end of the year," according to Warren Freeman, director of the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments.

But initial census profiles for the area indicate a relatively stable population troubled by few of the woes of more urban populations, save an expensive and tight housing market.

Total population of Carmel is 4,707, compared with 4,756 in 1976 and 4,525 in 1970, according to the 1980 census. The male population is 1,915 and the female population numbers 2,792.

The median age of residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea is 50 years, with 2,730 citizens in the 18-to-64 age bracket. A total of 1,394 Carmel residents are 65 years old or older.

Here's another bit of information that should come as no surprise: the overwhelming majority of Carmelites are white, with only a smattering of minorities. There are 4,479 white residents, 15 Blacks, 86 Asians, 106 Spanish, and 21 other minorities in Carmel.

Roughly half of the 2,560 households in Carmel, or 1,156, are one-person households. Total number of families, according to the census, is 1,179. And there are 572 households in Carmel occupied by one person older than 65 years.

There are 1,197 renter-occupied housing units in Carmel, with a median monthly rental of $354, and 3,124 year-round housing units in Carmel. The mean number of persons per housing unit in Carmel is 1.83.

Despite its obvious affluence, Carmel is not without problems. The 1980 census also reveals a total of 26 over-crowded housing units, or those in which the household population exceeds 1.01 persons per room, excluding bathroom, kitchen and hall.

THERE ARE ALSO 23 housing units, according to the census, which lack complete plumbing facilities, including hot and cold piped water, flush toilet, shower and tub or wash basin.

Population of Carmel Valley, as revealed in the 1980 census data, is 11,208. By far, the majority of Valley residents are also white — precisely 10,822 persons. There are 31 Blacks, 43 American Indians, 64 Japanese, 32 Chinese, 31 Filipino, 14 Korean, and 157 persons of other ethnic groups in Carmel Valley.

The largest single minority group in Carmel Valley, however, is persons of Spanish origin; that category includes 406 residents.

Population of the Valley is about equally divided between male and female, with 5,317 males and 5,891 females. The majority of both men and women are in the 18 to 64-year-old category, according to the census.

It may be of small interest to note, too, that there are more single men than single women in Carmel Valley. Census data indicate there are 1,183 single males and 976 single females in the Valley. The number of married males is 2,810 — just slightly more than the 2,805 married females.

There were 8,448 persons who lived in owner-occupied households in Carmel Valley in 1980, with an average size of 2.32 persons per household. The number of owner-occupied households is 3,520, as compared with 1,249 rental households, according to the census.

Total number of housing units in the Valley is 5,594, with an effective vacancy rate (housing units available for sale or rental) of 3.9 percent. At the same time, there are 454 persons in Carmel Valley who live in over-crowded housing units.

The median value of owner-occupied homes in Carmel Valley was $174,000 in 1980, while the median monthly rental payment for housing was $380. The census tallied 966 condominium units in Carmel Valley, 703 of which were owner-occupied and 132 of which were renter-occupied.

One hundred and thirty-one condominium units were recorded as vacant in Carmel Valley in 1980; and 45 of those were listed as "vacant and for sale."

By comparison, there were 51 condominiums in Carmel-by-the-Sea in 1980, with 24 of those (47 percent) owner-occupied, 16 rented (31 percent), and 11 (21 percent) vacant.

Information from the 1980 census confirms what has long been accepted as a fact of life: that Carmel and Carmel Valley residents, in comparison with other county and state residents, enjoy a relatively high standard of living.

Fire hazard grows in heat

As summer approaches and temperatures begin to warm up, the fire hazard becomes more evident. The California Department of Forestry reminds residents of Monterey and San Benito Counties now is the time of year to start removing weeds and trash build-up from around the home, clear at least 30 feet.

When wildfires do occur during the summer months, they can travel through dry weeds at a high rate of speed. The threat to homes and other buildings is obvious during the dry season; however, now is the time to clean up before vegetation dries.

Many homes in rural areas have brush and dry grass dangerously close. This situation presents the most difficult firefighting problem to CDF firemen. When vegetation grows up close to buildings, little or no room is left for firemen to protect the home.

The primary concern of the CDF during a wildland fire is the protection of life and property. When homes have the 30-foot clearance, fewer firefighters are needed to protect the homes freeing more men to stop the fire spread.

Stevenson school junior is honored

Robert Louis Stevenson School junior, Cynthia Chapman, daughter of Mrs. Carol B. Chapman of Carmel, has been selected as the representative of the Cypress Unit, American Legion Auxiliary, Marian, California, who will sponsor the program. Alternates selected by the Interview Committee from the Cypress Unit are Mollie Smith of Carmel and Aimee Rosewall of Watsonville.

The annual Girls' State program will be held June 28 through July 5, 1982, on the California State University, Sacramento campus. The program gives the participants the opportunity to practice the duties, rights and responsibilities of American citizenship through practical experiences in the operation of government.

Parents offer to help music program

There is some good news in an otherwise bleak budget picture in the Carmel Unified School District: a parents group has offered to raise about $30,000 to fund a music program.

Robert Fenton, president of the Friends of the Carmel Unified Schools (FOCUS) announced May 25 that the organization will seek grants and financial contributions for a music program.

Fenton, when he made his announcement before the board of trustees, promised FOCUS would "work like hell" to raise the funds and "we will give it our best shot."

The bleak budget forecasts in the district (see related story this issue) had put the music program in jeopardy. However, in a review of the budget, trustees kept the program alive based on the announcement by FOCUS.

The monies would finance a full-time teacher at Carmel Middle School and a part-time instructor at the high school.

"This will assure that the program will continue through the high school. I'm really pleased with the FOCUS announcement," said Supt. William Rand.

New family practitioner in Valley

Dr. Ralph Retherford, the family practitioner in Carmel Valley Village who advocates preventive health practices, has announced that Dr. Dale Coco will join him full-time as his associate.

While Dr. Coco shares Dr. Retherford's interest in preventive medicine, his main orientation is towards a more traditional brand of family practice, which Dr. Retherford feels will complement his own practice.

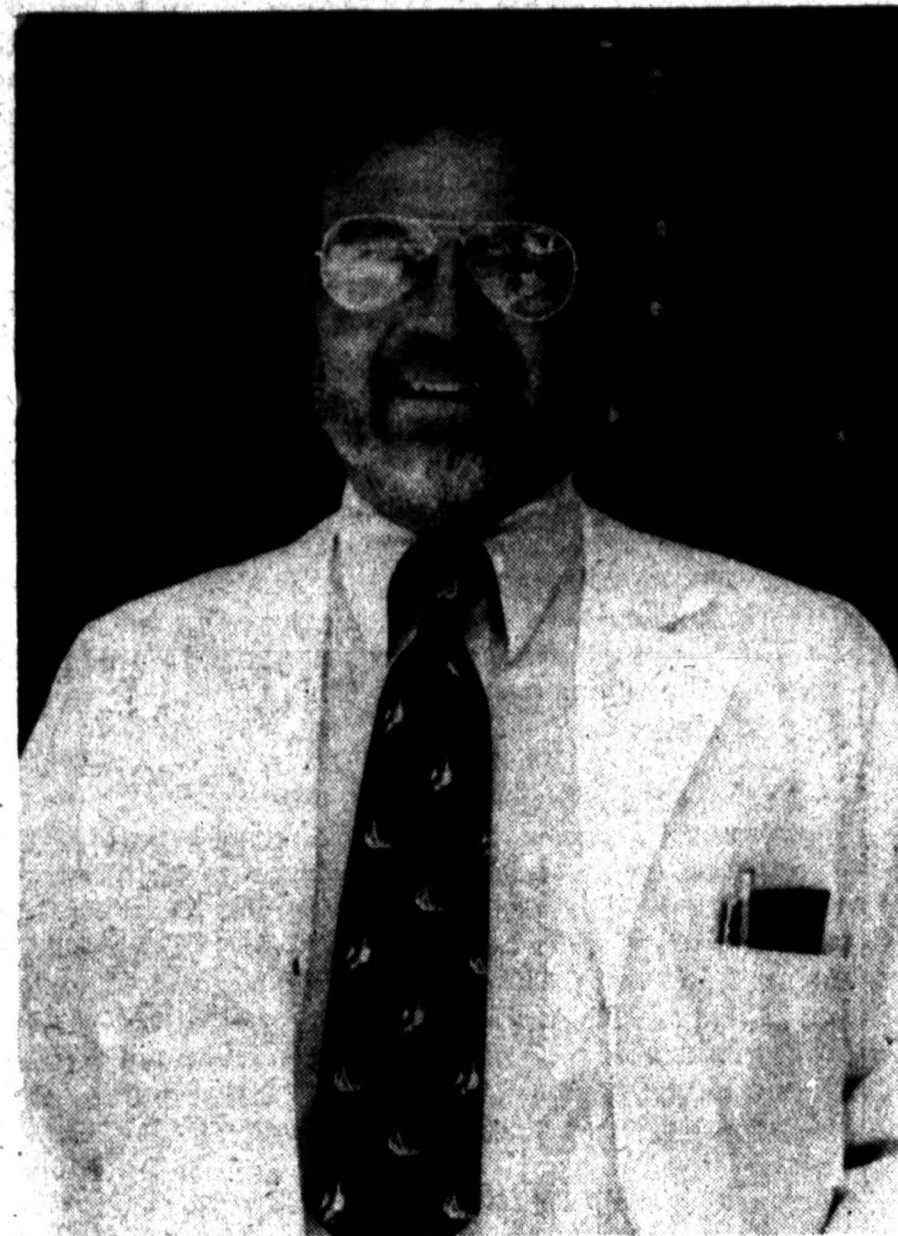

"My main interest lies in teaching people how to stay healthy, while Dr. Coco is interested mainly in diagnosing and treating illness. Of course, we will both be doing a lot of teaching, diagnosing and treatment in our practices, but there will be a subtle difference in orientation between us."

Dale Coco is 36 years old, married, with one daughter five years old and one son three and one-half. He has a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in biology and a minor in chemistry from the Southern Methodist University. He earned his MD degree from the University of Texas Southwestern Health Center at Dallas and has a master's equivalent in biology with graduate work.

Dr. Coco did a rotating internship at Parkland Memorial Hospital and subsequently achieved credit for 34 months of residency in various fields at Parkland Memorial Hospital and Stanford University Hospital. He has six years of private practice and experience in Family Practice and is Board Certified in Family Practice and a Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians.

Dr. Coco had a faculty appointment to the University of California at Davis, where he served as a clinical instructor in their residency training program. He now serves as Clinical Instructor in Family Practice for Medical Students at the University of California San Francisco.

He has experience in Hospital Administration, having served as Chief of Staff of Barton Memorial Hospital at Lake Tahoe.

ROP mixes summer jobs with classes

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

How MANY times is the old story repeated: "Employers want workers with experience, but how can you get experience if nobody will hire you?"

But at Carmel High School, there is a special project offered this summer through the Regional Occupation Program (ROP) that teachers hope will not only provide training, but jobs, too.

The summer program is offered in three categories: parks and recreation, hospitality and tourism, and textiles, said ROP Director Chuck Phillips.

The classes are still open and students can register at the ROP office, he said.

Phillips said the classes are designed to introduce students to different jobs and in the case of the hospitality and tourism program, the students will actually be employed in the industry.

"I look at our program as exploratory. Students need to find out what they like to do and what they can do," he said. "We primarily train for entry level jobs or train students so they can go on to more advanced training programs in college or private institutions."

Phillips is optimistic about the job outlook for students. "In the service occupation fields, there are jobs available. They are entry-level, but they give the students some money and experience," he said.

"I try to help them fit into the job they have, how to hold the job and how to get promoted."

Phillips said the program is also designed to help the student in employer relations and in learning how to adopt the right kind of attitude toward entry-level positions.

Most of the entry-level positions available on the Peninsula are in the tourist industry, which is where teacher Bob Harr steps in.

"Summer is the ideal time for the program. As school keys down, the industry keys up. It's a perfect marriage," said Harr, who jointly teaches the program with Sonya Philpitt, an instructor at Pacific Grove High School.

Harr is also confident that jobs can be found for students who register for the class, which is taught an hour a week while students work for variable credit.

"In the classroom, we try to prepare students for the skills and traits necessary. The training program on the job is a planned sequence between the student, the employer and myself," he said. "Part of the curriculum is handled by the boss on the job."

In the classroom, Harr tries to give students guidance on how to get along on the job with employers and fellow workers.

"I try to help them fit into the job they have, how to hold the job and how to get promoted," he said.

Besides meeting with students once a week, Harr visits job sites to evaluate performance and talks with employers.

A SECOND program is designed not only to help students find jobs, but to show them first-hand what to expect.

Richard Fletcher will lead a series of four traveling programs in the parks and recreation program, which will take students to government-owned parks such as Yosemite and private recreational areas such as Disneyland.

"We want to expose the kids to the environment. We've set up and designed and hit all types of areas that kids might get jobs in," Fletcher said. "We hit the gamut of what there is to offer. In giving them a smorgasbord of what's out there, we help them find jobs that they are interested in."

The first trip begins June 17 and takes students for a 17-day southern trip to such places as San Diego Zoo, Disneyland, Borrego Desert and Santa Barbara.

Another bus trip is also 17 days and heads north July 12. The students will visit Yosemite, Tahoe, Lake Shasta, Humboldt and Pt. Reyes.

The trips cost students $100 each for meals. Camp fees and transportation is paid through the ROP program, which is entirely state-funded.

When the students visit a park or recreation area, they are met by a prospective employer who gives them job applications and takes them for a tour, Fletcher said.

By having the students visit the potential job sites, it gives them first-hand knowledge of what the work will encompass and whether they are interested, he said.

Two backpack trips are also planned, which will introduce students to forestry jobs.

The first trip is scheduled for Aug. 2-11 and will go to Yosemite. A second journey will go to Evolution Valley in the Sierras Aug. 10-24.

Cost of the trip is $5 per day, said Fletcher.

A third summer program will be offered on textiles and will be taught by Sue Williams-Pierik, who instructed the design occupations course during the school year.

Textiles will be offered from 10 a.m. until noon daily from June 21 until July 2. Students must pay for their own materials, she said.

Textiles will include instruction on printing techniques, stencils, batiks and silk screens.

The course is primarily designed to help students create their own works for sale on an individual basis, Mrs. Williams-Pierik said.

For more information about the programs, contact the office at 624-3544.

Employers may call school for workers

Employers who would like to hire Carmel High School students should contact David Winter at 624-3544.

The high school keeps a job board, which is updated daily. Job openings are also announced in the daily bulletin.

Father Farrell's wisdom

Another kind of vandal

We throw up our hands in horror when we read that a school, a church, or a home has been vandalized. We are shocked at the needless destruction broken windows and furniture: rooms flooded, paint tossed on walls and ceilings. Everywhere there is a plague of graffiti disfiguring public buildings and bridges with obscene words and symbols. However, there are more prevalent forms of vandalism: gossip, sarcasm and the misuse of speech.

We hear so called "good people" sabotage their neighbor's reputation in seconds with a ruthlessness more destructive than any physical rampage. Some men become experts at making false judgments and reaching rash conclusions based on unfounded suspicions. Others, out of meanness, will withhold a compliment or refuse to give a compliment or praise when it is due. They refuse to see good in others and zero in on every fault and failure. These types of vandalism can be more destructive than acts which make headlines. The cure for verbal vandalism is so simple — we almost hesitate to mention it. It is grounded in the Golden Rule. Speak of others as you would have them speak of you. The old Visigoth tribe of Vandals is still alive and well in Carmel.

When were you vandalized lately and when did you retaliate 100%? Maybe we carry an improper passport!

The event is called a "Surfabout," an Australian term which indicates that more than just surfing competition is involved. W.R. Holman Collection opens at Museum of Art

A wide range of media will be represented in three exhibits which will open at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art on Friday, June 4. Watercolors and drawings by Roger Bailey, Olof Dahlstrand and Edward D. Maryon, aquatint etchings, woodcuts and monoprints by George De Groat, and the W.R. Holman collection of paintings will be shown.

Bailey, a Fellow of the American Institute of Architects and winner of the prestigious Paris Prize in Architecture in 1922, has had a notable career as architect and teacher. He was head of the School of Architecture at the University of Utah.

Bailey's pencil sketches were done in Europe from 1922-1925. He captures the mood of each building in a series that is considered among the best architectural sketches ever made. His watercolors convey the mood of his subjects by texture and interplay of light and shadow.

Bailey's paintings are exhibited at the Salt Lake City Museum of Fine Arts, the Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco and the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Olof Dahlstrand is a well-known Monterey Peninsula architect as well as watercolorist. His first serious interest in watercolor developed as a result of a summer course in architectural design he took at Cornell University in 1938. The course was taught by Bailey.

Maryon, professor of art at the University of Utah, became familiar with the rich artistic subject matter of the Monterey Peninsula in the 1950s and occasionally came here to paint.

His watercolors are drawn on location with the color blocked in as time and weather permit. His use of opaque and semi-opaque pigments results in a play of transparent color against more solid pigments, giving his watercolors an added dimension.

De Groat is director of the Extended Education Program for the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and the interim president of the Monterey County Cultural Commission, local adjunct of the California Arts Council.

He is well known for his "chromatic expressionist" work, a form of color field painting for which he received a Ford Foundation Grant in 1976. De Groat's work is widely exhibited. He has current exhibits at the San Bernardino County Museum of Art and the Brand Gallery in Glendale.

The W.R. Holman collection of paintings, left to the Monterey Peninsula of Art by the late Pacific Grove merchant and his wife, will be exhibited outside the Holman home for the first time.

The collection includes works by Corot, the French Impressionist, as well as paintings by Samuel F.B. Morse. Morse, better known as the "Duke of Del Monte" was hailed among his artist friends as the self-proclaimed "Complete Amateur."

The Holman collection is highly respected for its works by Peninsula artists including William Keith, "old master of California art," and Charles Rollo Peters, famous for his "nocturnes." Peters entertained lavishly on his 60-acre Monterey estate, inviting fellow members of the Bohemian Club down

Explore Elizabethan era through MPC program

The Second Annual Monterey Peninsula Shakespeare Festival will begin June 14 with a comprehensive program of Elizabethan courses at Monterey Peninsula College, 980 Fremont, Monterey.

The program will offer a wide range of college courses emphasizing the culture, history and art of the Elizabethan Age. Training programs for beginning and advanced actors will also be offered.

Stage productions and a Renaissance Faire will be also part of the festival. "Monterey's festival is not just production-oriented," explained Peter DeBono, head of the MPC drama department. The concept behind the festival is to immerse students in Elizabethan history and culture for a better understanding of Shakespeare's works.

Courses will include Music and Dance of the Baroque Era, Theatre Workshops, Beginning Costuming, Play Production, Experimental Theatre, Film Appreciation: Shakespeare on Film, Elizabethan Acting, Shakespeare: The Visual Image.

Art Center to exhibit works by Crispo, Benton and Savo

The Pacific Grove Art Center will open three art exhibitions with a preview/reception from 7-9 p.m. Friday, June 4. The exhibitions will feature hand-colored photographs by Buff Savo, Large Works & Mini Murals by Dick Crispo, and marine paintings by Anita Benson.

Born in Carmel, Savo now lives on Vancouver Island where she enjoys growing summer vegetables. Her enjoyment and satisfaction with the uncomplicated and simplistic lifestyle carries over in her approach to photography.

Savo says her series of 19 handpainted portraits were done "because portraits are the only thing I am interested in photographing at this time. I try not to analyze why. I only make the photographs to please my own eye. Either it looks right to me or it doesn't."

Savo readily admits she is strongly influenced in composition and subject by her mother, painter Joan Savo. Joan feels influenced by her daughter's work as well.

"I choose my subjects instinctively," says

Savo. "My approach to photography is very simplistic. The visual is very satisfactory to me. I don't need other embellishments of verbalization. I hope that some of my photographs appeal to the viewer or bring them pleasure in some way."

Crispo, the art program coordinator at Soledad Correctional Training Facility, will show several works done at the facility with the assistance of the artists/inmates as well as independent works.

Crispo has completed 60 acrylic murals on the walls of public and privately owned buildings throughout the United States. He is known for America The Outside, a half-mile-long mural painted with the assistance of inmates at Soledad's central facility.

Winner of numerous national and international awards, Crispo's work is represented in more than 30 permanent collections worldwide.

He began mural painting in 1965. "The scale seemed right and I like moving from my shoulder rather than my wrist," Crispo said.

Below the Surface, a series of marine paintings by Anita Benson, will be exhibited in Gallery 19. The title of this exhibit is intentionally laced with multiple meanings. Benson, who acknowledges that emotionalism and conflict figure strongly in her work, says her underwater paintings represent many aspects of life.

The exhibitions will continue through July 3.

The public is welcome to attend the reception at the gallery, 568 Lighthouse, Pacific Grove.

For more information, phone 375-2208.

Noted children's author to appear in Carmel

Tomie de Paola, internationally known children's author and illustrator, will autograph copies of his latest book, Francis, the Poor Man of Assisi, from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, June 6 at the Thunderbird Bookshop, in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel.

De Paola has written and illustrated more than 100 children's books and received top awards. One of his favorite forms is the folk tale.

He feels this form touches children of all ages and that folk tales help children deal with "getting along in the land of giants."

Included among his folk tales are The Cat on the Dovrefell, Strega Nona, and The Friendly Beasts.

Human relations are another important theme in de Paola's books. Nana Upstairs and Nana Downstairs tells of a child's love for his grandparents and coping with their death. Now One Foot, Now the Other portrays a child helping his grandfather who has had a stroke.

He also deals with humor and has written and illustrated a new pop-up book, Giorgio's Village, which will be published in the fall.

The public is welcome to meet de Paola at no charge. For more information, phone 624-8886.

Beware the 'several grasses'

By JUDITH A. EISNER

THE HEAVY RAINS this year are causing some seasonal dog problems to arrive earlier than usual.

One of the worst hot-weather problems in this area are foxtails. Some people call them "seed heads," some call them "stickers" and others "foxtails," but by any name, they add up to trouble for local dogs and cats.

Whatever its proper name, a foxtail is defined by Webster as "any of several grasses with brushlike spikes." A friend defines them as "something that goes in and doesn't come out."

These "several grasses," when dry, have bristly, barbed heads on them, to facilitate their sticking fast to a passing victim. They work their way into children's socks and jeans, but also into dogs' and cats' paws, ears, noses and underarms. Because they are very sharp, they can pierce the skin between the pads or under the front legs and imbed themselves in the flesh. In ears, eyes and nose, they go up or down into the canal and once lodged there, can't be shaken or sneezed or pulled loose because of the "barbs" that hold them fast.

Irritation is one of the first signs of a foxtail. A dog with a foxtail in its paw will lick and lick and lick at the site, eventually reddening and breaking the skin. Swelling may occur.

Sneezing and head-shaking are signs of a foxtail lodged in nostrils or ears. An animal with a foxtail in its nose will sneeze constantly, over and over again, sometimes for hours. Excitement or a minor irritation may cause a dog or cat to sneeze — as will a cold — but those sneezes are mild and occasional. A foxtail-induced sneezing bout just keeps going.

There are several things you can do to minimize foxtail danger for your pets. If you keep your dog in a restricted area, simply mowing or scything the grass and raking up the cuttings will remove most of the danger. If your dog or cat runs free, regular daily grooming and inspection can help catch foxtails before they are totally embedded and require veterinary treatment.

Make it a habit to inspect your dog or cat at least once a day, picking up and checking each paw, especially between the pads. Many dogs grow dense hair between their toes, and this can harbor all sorts of irritants as well as foxtails.

Check ears — especially in dogs with drop-ears like Labradors or spaniels. Remove any weeds, seeds and foxtails gently. If you find a foxtail that has already begun working its way into tissue, it's time to call the vet for help.

Be sure to check dogs and cats in the "underarm" area, as a very susceptible spot for foxtails because it is almost hairless and unprotected. Check tails and the under-tail area, too.

IN SUMMER, perhaps more than any other time, regular brushing and combing is very important. Most dogs and cats shed during warm weather and profit from assistance in ridding themselves of dead hair. In addition, warm weather is the time for "hot spots," eczema and a host of other skin problems. You cannot know the condition of your pet's skin without parting the hair and getting a good look at it.

Regular grooming only takes a few minutes, unless you are coping with an Old English sheepdog, Afghan or poodle in show clip. For a moderately-coated dog, you should begin with a thorough combing, all the way down to the skin, and being sure to comb out the "feathers" on legs, ears, etc. Follow this up with a brushing with a stiff-bristle brush.

Such grooming will make the dog feel and look better; stimulate the skin's oil glands; comb out any weeds and burrs; detect possible parasites such as fleas and ticks; catch any skin troubles before they advance to a serious condition; remove dead hair and "dandruff" flakes, and make your pet much pleasanter to have around.

It is absolutely essential that long-haired dogs and cats be brushed and combed daily. Persian-type cats, even those who never go outdoors, simply cannot cope with their own coats when it comes to self-grooming. Either they can't comb the hair thoroughly enough, or they may develop hairballs from swallowing dead hair which then wads into indigestible balls in their stomachs and intestines.

IT'S COMMON PRACTICE to clip poodles, cocker spaniels, schnauzers and other dogs very closely for the summertime. Owners believe that removing "all that hair" makes the dogs more comfortable, although it has been proven that a heavy coat, providing it's kept clean and tangle-free, acts as insulation against the heat.

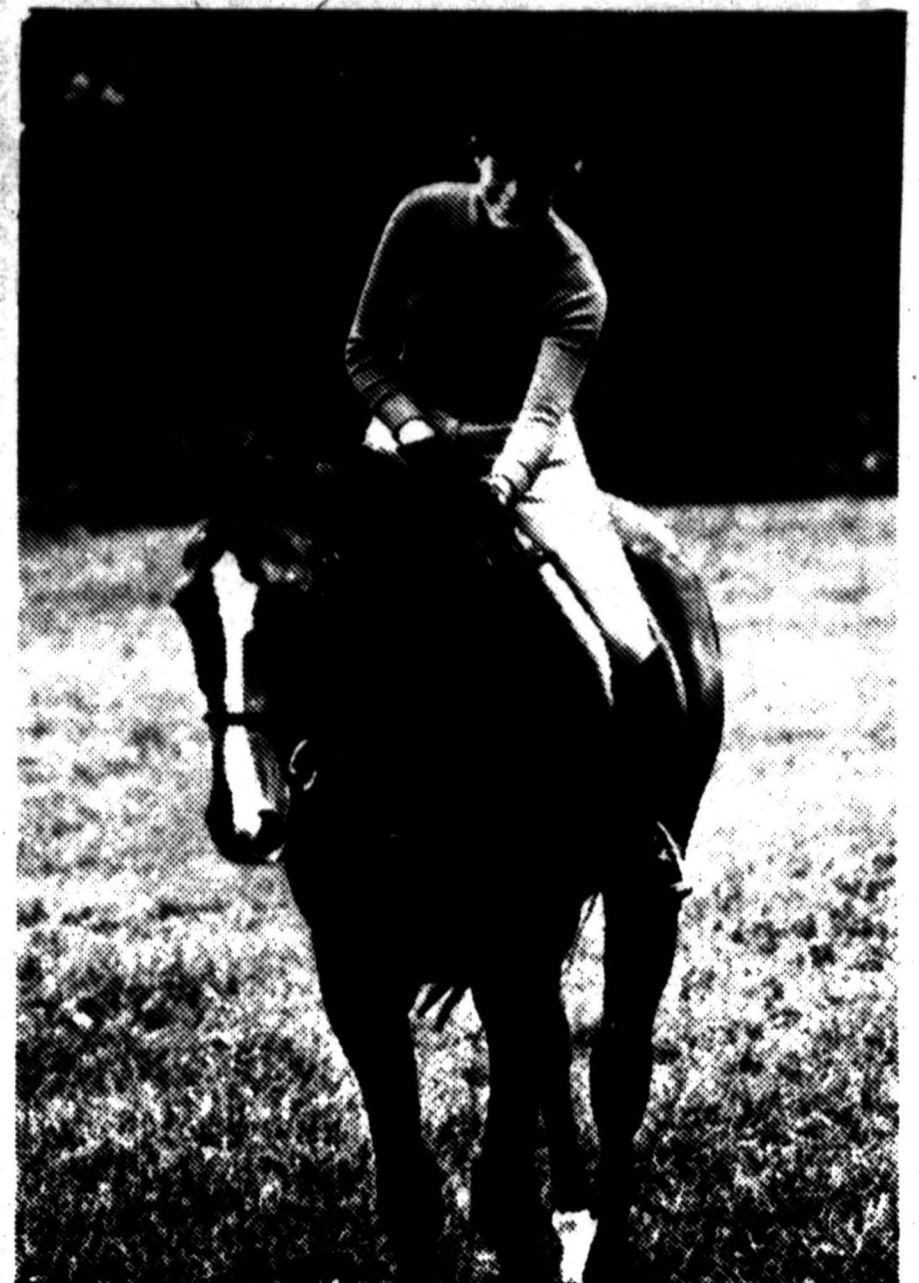

One of the problems with such drastic clipping is that dogs can sunburn unless protected. Especially with light-skinned dogs, owners should provide shade for any animal that has been clipped so closely that his bare skin shows through his coat. Sunburn for dogs is just as painful and potentially dangerous as it is for humans.

WATER is a basic need that too many pet owners forget. Now that it's turned warm, it is absolutely essential that all dogs and cats have access to clean, fresh water at all times. We can't stress that enough.

If you take your pet to the beach or for a long car ride, carry cool water in a vacuum bottle and offer him drinks at regular intervals. Don't wait for him to become badly overheated and drink too much at one time.

At home, be sure there are at least two sources of fresh water for your pets, indoors and out.

You may not see your dog or cat drink water, but he surely does. If he cannot obtain water from a clean dish, he'll get it from a stagnant puddle or from the bathroom bowl. Depriving any animal of a constant supply of clean water is thoughtless and cruel.

IN HARMONY ...

That's what riding is all about ... a calm, confident rider on a relaxed, responsive horse.

WE'RE DIFFERENT ...

The goal of the Rancho Laureles Riding Program is to teach riders to attain this special feeling.

We tailor our riding lessons to the individual. Beginners gain confidence and control; advanced riders improve their form.

We don't believe in over-mounting timid riders by putting them on more horse than they can comfortably manage, or insisting that riders jump before they're ready.

We stress the basics of correct horsemanship to teach how to ride effectively, and we make learning to ride a rewarding, enjoyable experience.

WHO CAN LEARN?

Anyone! One of the wonderful things about riding is you're never too old to learn. Horses are not just for teenage girls. They're for everyone! If learning to ride has been a dream of yours, we can make it a reality!

EXPENSIVE?

Riding lessons actually cost less than tennis, golf or skiing lessons. And you don't need any special equipment to get started. We supply horses and tack. (We're told that our school horses are a delight to ride and the best anywhere. That's an important asset in any riding program.)

BOARDING, TOO

Rancho Laureles continues to offer the finest boarding and riding facilities, including deluxe box stalls, paddocks and pasturage, plus safe sand arenas and direct access to 2,500 acres of glorious trails in Garland Ranch Regional Park.

Group or private riding lessons by appointment

To discuss your particular horse-care needs, phone Rancho Laureles Equestrian Center, "the home of happy horses."

A triumphant return

By LYN BRONSON

FOR FIVE years now the Carmel Music Society has presented the Grand Prize Winner of its Young California Artist Competition as its final event of each season.

During the early years of the annual competition, these final concerts were sparsely attended. Some of the Society's subscribers elected to stay home rather than venture out to hear a "student" and single ticket sales were disappointing.

However, when Diane Hidy, the Society's 1981 Grand Prize Winner returned last Thursday to play a recital at Sunset Center in Carmel, a reversal of the trend was clearly in evidence. Although not a full house, a large, enthusiastic audience was on hand to greet Miss Hidy.

One year after her triumph in the competition in Carmel, Ms. Hidy could boast of some impressive laurels earned in the interim: 1981 winner of the Joanna Hodges International Piano Competition, a concert debut with the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra in February 1982, Southwest Regional Winner of the Collegiate Artist Competition held by the Music Teachers National Association in 1981, and finally an invitation to appear in a full recital on the Northwest Young Artist Series in Seattle this fall.

Ms. Hidy gives an impression on stage of intense self discipline, and her playing communicates, above all, solidity and control. The ease with which she negotiated the technical hazards of a demanding program was awesome.

She also exhibits a skill in playing a program around her own personal strengths so that the recital gained in intensity and emotional communication, working toward a climax in the second half of the program.

Some of the selections heard on the first half of the program were, however, less effective. Beethoven's Sonata in A Major, Op. 101, is a problematic work, less idiomatic for the keyboard than Op. 109, 110 and 111, and needing a quiet, ethereal cantabile in its opening movement to set the mood of "intense inner feeling" specified by Beethoven. Although there were some beautiful moments the performance as a whole did not plumb the depths of emotional intensity which Beethoven was obviously striving for.

The three sonatas by Scarlatti also failed to make the effect of which they are capable, possibly because they were the first pieces on the program and the artist was still warming up.

But, with the Rachmaninoff Prelude, Op. 23, No. 4, and Etude-Tableau, Op. 39, No. 7, a higher level of emotional involvement began to emerge, and one wished for more Rachmaninoff.

But, it was after intermission that Ms. Hidy really revealed the true extent of her artistry. Right from the first note of the Chopin Ballade in F Minor, Miss Hidy revealed exceptional imagination, musical maturity and good judgment.

In the opening pages of this ballade, where Chopin comes within a hairs' breadth of repeating his material once too often, Ms. Hidy kept the line going with rare expressiveness and charm. The final pages and the coda were dramatically powerful. This was one of the most moving performances of this ballade I have had the pleasure of hearing.

Ms. Hidy maintained this level in the final work — Ravel's Gaspard de la Nuit, one of the most difficult works in the piano literature. Once again the technical hurdles were surmounted with consummate ease.

Working with a difficult piano where certain sections sound muffled and choked, especially with the soft pedal, Ms. Hidy still managed to develop a high level of artistry and expressiveness. The cumulative effect of the middle movement, Le gibet, was powerful indeed, and the clarity and brilliance of the final movement, Scarbo, was beautifully sustained.

The audience was warmly appreciative and was rewarded with two encores — a lyrical performance of Chopin's Nocturne in D Flat Major, Op. 27, No. 2, and one of the Tcherépnin Bagatelles.

Thus, Ms. Hidy ultimately overcame an initial impression of chilliness and went on to light a fire in her closing pieces. She gave an impression of sincere dedication to her craft and a love for the piano literature.

This was an impressive recital, and we wish her well in her career.

THE CARMEL MUSIC SOCIETY'S 56th season has recently been announced, and it contains some interesting attractions.

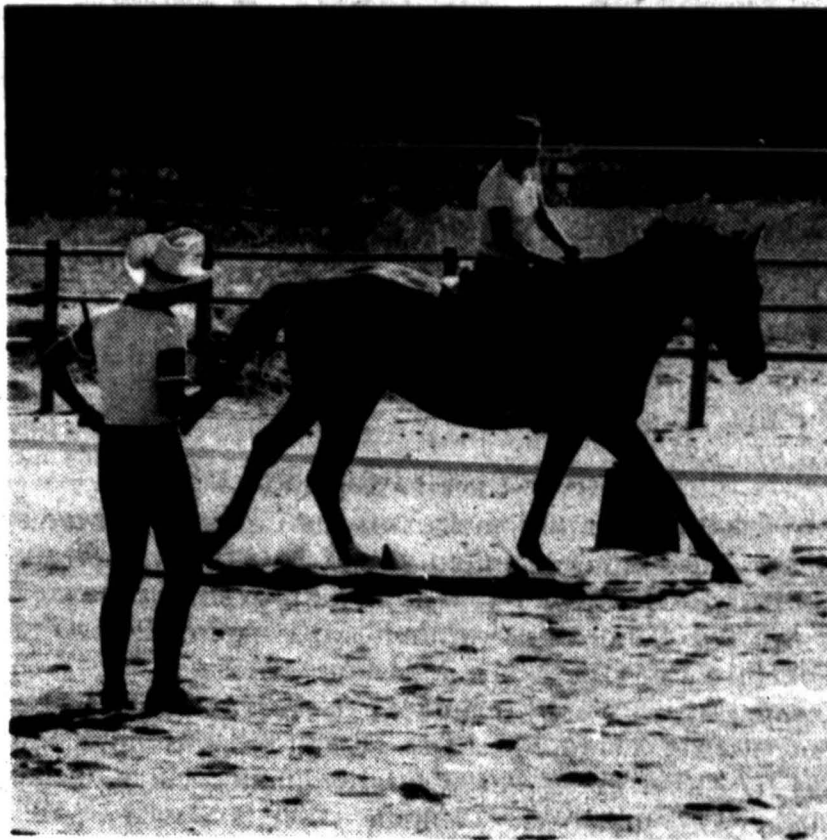

Hungarian pianist Annie Fischer will open the season in October as she returns after a long absence for a tour of the United States. She will also be appearing as soloist with the San Francisco and Los Angeles Symphony orchestras during the same tour.

In February, 1983, Jamie Laredo will be conductor and violin soloist with the Scottish Chamber Orchestra. Laredo was winner of the prestigious Queen Elizabeth of Belgium Competition at age 18.

Cellist Nathaniel Rosen, a native Californian and first prize winner of the Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow, who has built an impressive career during the last four years, will play at Sunset Center in March 1983.

In April the New York Vocal Arts Ensemble will appear with an interesting program ranging from Elizabethan madrigals to Schoenberg canons. One of their members, tenor Gregory Mercer, will be familiar to Hidden Valley fans.

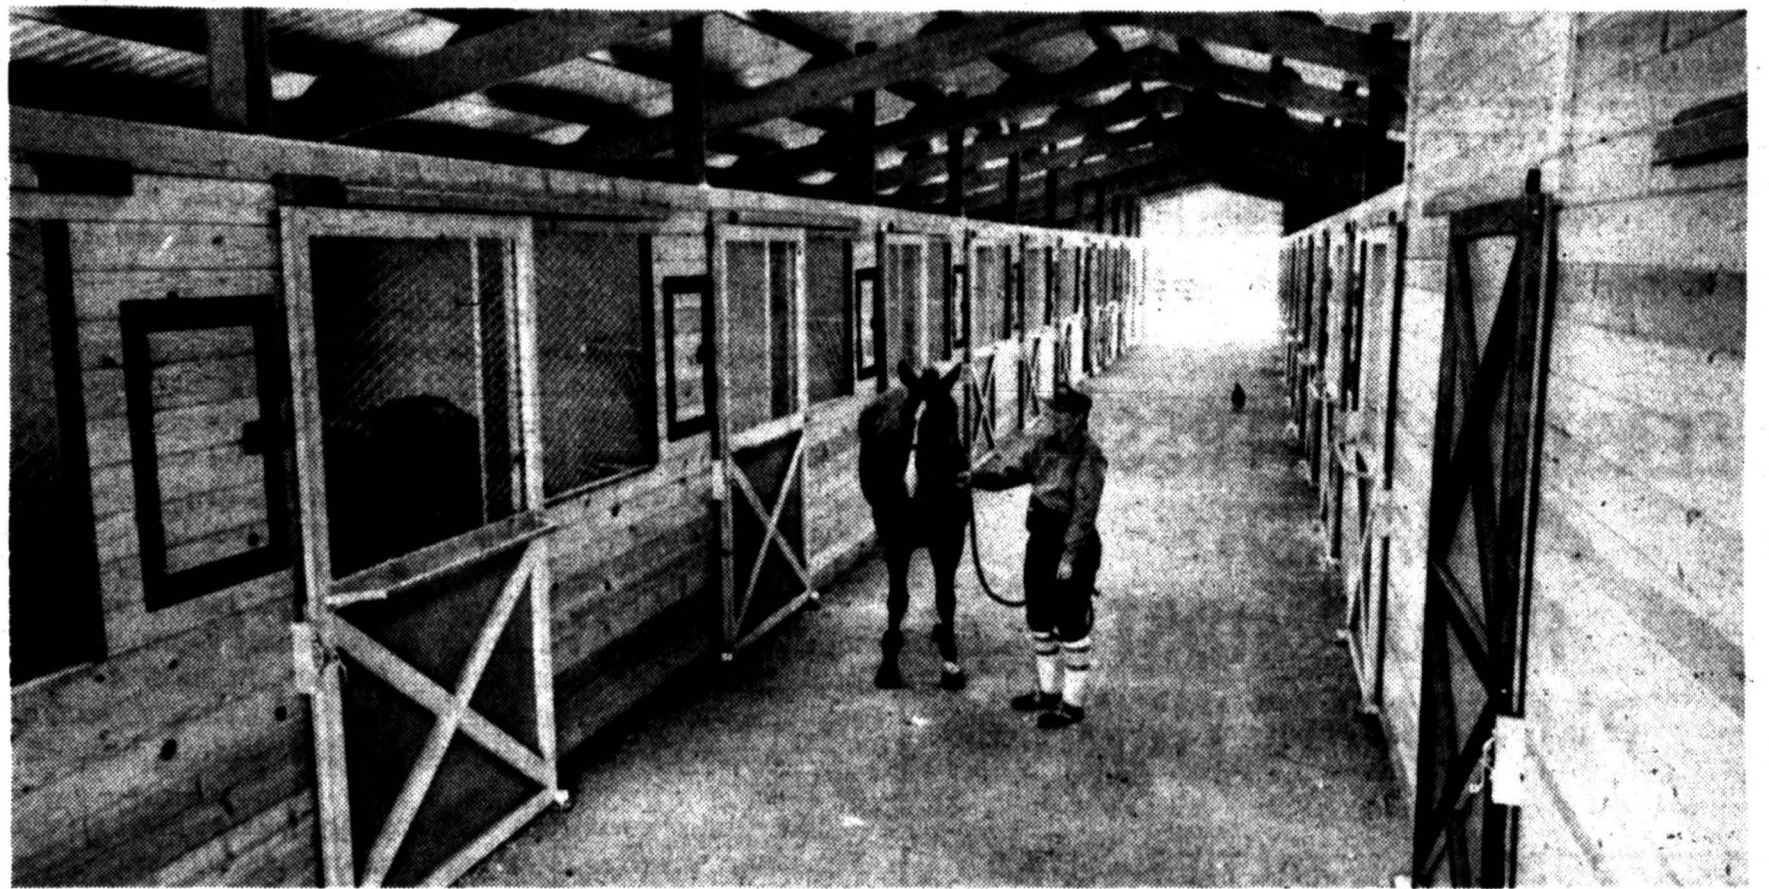

To close the season, the society will present its 1982 Young California Artist Competition Grand Prize Winner, Ann Gresham, who made such a favorable impression at the society's awards concert last month.

Two large, securely fenced arenas offer excellent, well-drained sand footing. Our jump ring measures 325x135 feet and is used for basic schooling as well. Our 150x275-foot upper arena includes a dressage court. There's also a round lunging ring and a half-mile track around our fields for warming up a horse, cooling him out or legging him up.

A very special part of riding at Rancho Laureles is Garland Ranch Regional Park and 2,500 acres of equestrian trails. Our property directly adjoins the park.

THE FINEST CARE

We're proud to receive compliments from professional horsepeople about the condition of our horses. Our feeding program includes high-protein alfalfa cubes and the finest oat and alfalfa hay money can buy, fed generously to put weight and 'bloom' on even rundown, skinny horses and keep it there. Regular farrier and veterinary care are part of the program at Rancho Laureles.

LESSONS, ANYONE?

Our instructor, Doug Downing, can take you from the basics of equitation through advanced jumping and dressage. He is available for private, semi-private or group lessons by appointment. Doug is also a kind, conscientious and qualified trainer who can start a horse gently or help smooth out any problems you may encounter.

GOOD COMPANY

One of the nicest things about Rancho Laureles is its relaxed, informal atmosphere. People tend to linger and visit and that makes us feel good because it means they like it here. After a ride, they'll sit around, enjoy a soft drink and chat — mostly about horses, of course. But best of all, newcomers are made to feel genuinely welcome, whether they're nervous beginners or old pros. There's always a helping hand and a generous sprinkling of advice to help you feel you "belong" right from the start.

Why not see for yourself? Come out into the Carmel Valley sunshine to pay us a visit!

Gene Kelly stars
in Oscar winner

By RICHARD TYLER

"DON'T SEND me no more of those movies where a guy in silk drawers writes with a quill pen."

So read a letter allegedly sent to Louis B. Mayer by a theater owner during the height of MGM's lush historical releases. "Don't send me any of those movies where a guy in a top hat starts dancing down the street, singing his head off," might be a modern version of that plea.

However, times have changed. Cabaret, Funny Girl, and Grease have all been box office successes. And the release of That's Entertainment brought renewed interest in the older films. Rereleases appear in major cities, and best of all, the campus market has started to throb with the sound of tapping feet.

Musicals provide more escape, more fun, and more fond memories than almost any other genre. Consider:

- Everyone remembers Judy Garland winging "Over the Rainbow" in the Wizard of Oz.

- Fred Astaire was never more popular than in the elegant films he made with Ginger Rogers.

- Gene Kelly, one of the most important figures in the development of the American music film, is remembered by everyone for Singin' In The Rain and An American in Paris.

As the final presentation of the Academy Awards Film Festival, Sunset Center presents the MGM film, An American in Paris, produced by Arthur Freed and directed by Vincente Minnelli and starring Gene Kelly who received a special award "in appreciation of his versatility as an actor, singer, director, and dancer and specifically for his brilliant achievements in the art of choreography on film." Those who appear with him are Leslie Caron, Oscar Levant, Nina Foch, and Georges Guetary.

An American in Paris received seven Academy Awards and was listed as one of the "ten best" by the Film Daily. Vincente Minnelli also won the Directors' Guild of America Award.

An American in Paris is a romantic, highly imaginative musical comedy about an ex-GI who wants to stay in Paris to pursue his career as an artist. One of the most memorable sequences is a 20-minute ballet staged by Kelly (to Gershwin's "An American in Paris") especially noted for its dramatic use of color.

The film shows Paris with its life, gaiety, the Left Bank, Toulouse Lautrec posters, flower sellers, and friendly bohemians in beards and berets. It is a light-hearted production staged by Minelli with style and extravagance. It is also interesting to note that Alan Jay Lerner of Lerner and Lowe fame was the script writer for the film with Johnny Green as one of the musical directors.

Tickets will be available at the box office on the night of performance, Tuesday, June 8, at 8 p.m. at $2. Sunset Center Theater is located at 9th and San Carlos in Carmel.

Free self exam workshops taught

The Central Coast Cancer Council will sponsor a free workshop on breast self examination from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, June 5 at Carmel River School, Dolores and Fifteenth, Carmel.

One out of every 15 women in the United States will develop breast cancer, the number one cancer killer of women. If detected early, breast cancer can be cured. Since more than 90 percent of breast cancers are discovered by women themselves, it is essential they learn the procedure correctly and thoroughly. At this time only 16 percent of women examine their breasts regularly. Only two out of 10 breast lumps are malignant.

Trained volunteer registered nurses will teach the workshop. It requires only 15 minutes to learn the procedure. All women are welcome.

Real estate and you Energy audit regulations

A service of the Carmel Board of Realtors

By DAVID WITTRICK,
Chairman

Consumer Protection Committee

SELLERS have long been responsible for telling their realtor about the condition of the home being listed and sold. The realtor then had the responsibility of informing the buyer for the seller.

Now, Monterey County has added a specific legal requirement — sellers and their realtors must provide buyers with an energy audit if:

- The home was built before February 22, 1975;
- The home is located outside a city's limits;
- Escrow opened after June 4, 1982.

There is no requirement to correct any deficiencies, but there is a fine of $50 a day, to a maximum of $250, for each day the seller fails to comply by delivering the audit once escrow closes.

When the audit has been completed, it is turned over to the Monterey County Building Inspector for recording. Thereafter, the audit need not be done again, and a sale will not be held up for an uncompleted audit.

PG&E will perform the audits free of charge. To order, call 757-7126 collect. According to a PG&E spokesman, most audits to satisfy the county ordinance can be completed within two weeks, and the auditor will have the county form needed. The county will also perform the energy audit for $30. To order, call 373-0991.

Auditors inspect the home to (1) determine the resistance value of existing ceiling insulation, (2) check door openings for adequate weatherstripping, (3) check natural gas and electric water heaters for insulating blankets, (4) check for in-line flow restrictors or low-flow showerheads, (5) check any steam, steam condensate or recirculating hot-water piping for insulation, and (7) check for major points of air infiltration within the building.

More detailed information can be obtained from your realtor, buyers and sellers should be aware that the information is now required by county ordinance Chapter 18.42 of the Monterey County Code.

PRIVATE WATER CO.

Take a close look!

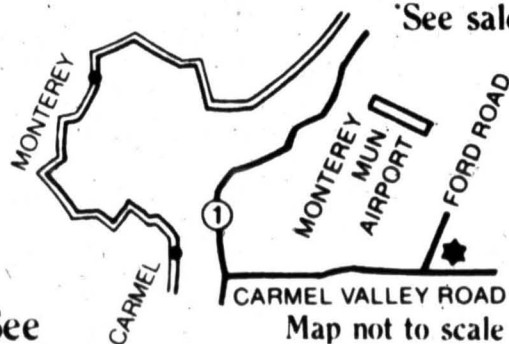

If you haven't seen Village Green lately, chances are you're in for a pleasant surprise or two.

We've just completed making an already beautiful and intimate community of 22 single-family attached homes even more so ... in keeping with the surrounding Carmel Valley community. We've added more mature landscaping to accent the rustic setting and there's now a fully-decorated model of our Plan A floorplan as well as a vignette of Plan C.

Exteriors crafted with cedar siding and shake roofs blend beautifully with landscaped front yards and individually fenced rear yards to give Village Green a special natural charm.

Best of all, we've added value to Village Green by drastically reducing prices to those who buy a new Village Green home today.

A pathway threads through oaks to reach the entrance deck of this shake-roofed, redwood home featuring fine craftsmanship, interior use of stone combined with native crafts and window walls opening to another seaward-facing deck.

Running along the entire west side of the house, this deck provides outdoor enjoyment of panoramic view encompassing the ocean, coastline and mountains of the Big Sur Country.
